GOV. JAMES R. THOMPSON

Class X top goal: Thompson

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Seeking to strike a conciliatory note, Gov. James R. Thompson Monday called on the Illinois General Assembly to support his vetoes and surprised no one by giving top priority to passage of a new criminal sentencing law.

Thompson's speech, which came during an unusual appearance before a joint Senate-House meeting the first day of the special fall session drew mixed reactions from Northwest suburban lawmakers, who are facing a crowded agenda. The strongest statement came from State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates.

"I don't know why he made the speech. There was nothing new. We could be spending a lot more time here than was originally planned," he said.

In his 15-minute speech, Thompson called on the legislature to study his veto messages carefully.

"I BESEECH YOU to read them, relying neither on news accounts nor second hand reports and consider them carefully, and prayerfully, before acting," the governor said.

The speech highlighted an otherwise uneventful day that was punctuated by a protest from pro-life advocates seeking to override Thompson's veto of a ban on state payments for abortions for public-aid recipients. Thompson's other veto was of legislation to approve the use of Laetrile, a purported cancer-fighting drug.

Besides considering his vetoes, Thompson also outlined the potentially staggering workload for the two special sessions.

Complex topics such as unemployment compensation, public aid, community college funding, consolidated elections, funding for new prisons and the controversial Class X sentencing plan crowd the agendas.

EVEN THOMPSON admitted that major action on some issues proposed for the special session might have to wait until next year. The lawmakers are scheduled to meet only 11 more days over the next month to consider those vetoes. The special sessions could go longer.

State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, disagreed with the notion that heavy workload might produce few results.

"Some of the issues are not that vital, I think we are up to it. I think we can do the work in 30 days," Mugalian said.

However, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, suggested the speech might create new political polarization in the legislature.

"IT SOUNDS CONCILIATORY, but I am not sure that it was not tongue in cheek. I don't think Thompson is the kind of person to change his mind easily," Schlickman said.

State Rep. Roger Stanley, R-Streamwood, said the speech sounded like Thompson knew the cordial relationship that existed with the legislature had dimmed.

"Some of the vetoes have caused antagonism and I think he knows

TUESDAY IN THE HERALD

Cops hunt bandit

A Montreal bank robber, accompanied by hostages, fled in a police-provided getaway car Monday after holding about a dozen persons at gunpoint in the bank for three hours. The bandit was armed with a rifle or sawed-off shotgun. — Page 3.

Air boycott urged

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., with the backing of the Air Line Pilots Assn., Monday proposed legislation for a boycott of air service to any country the President finds to be aiding and abetting terrorist hijackings. — Page 6.

Booers blasted

Bears' middle linebacker Don Rives blasted the Soldiers Field Boo-Birds Monday after Sunday's 16-10 loss to the Falcons. He also offered some frank opinions on the Bears' poor 2-4 record so far this year. — Sect. 4, Page 1.

Jumpers popular

Designers noted the popularity of last summer's sundresses and returned them to clothes racks this fall in the form of jumpers. For office and casual wear they're worn with a blouse or turtleneck, and for dressier occasions, the blouse is exchanged for jewelry or other accessories. — Sect. 2, Page 1.

War dead honored

President Carter commemorated the nation's war dead at Arlington Cemetery Monday. In a Veterans Day address he said the nation owes Vietnam veterans "a debt of gratitude" that has not been expressed because the war was unpopular. — Page 9.

Taxpayer bite seen

Thousands of substitute teachers and other part-time school employes soon could be eligible for unemployment compensation from their Northwest Suburban districts at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars a year to local taxpayers. — Page 7.

Rain again

Today will be mostly cloudy with a good chance of rain. High in the mid 60s; low in the 50s. Wednesday is good news with mostly sunny skies and warmer weather. High in the upper 60s. — Page 2.

Trial at a glance

- April 1973: Hoffman Estates Public works employes decide to unionize, charge Hoffman Estates officials with failure to provide adequate training and threaten to strike.
- May 7, 1973: Village Pres. Virginia Hayter and board of trustees vote to recognize union on the condition there would not be a strike.
- May 14, 1973: Union and village representatives begin contract negotiations.
- July 16, 1973: Negotiations end, union members ratify agreement.
- July 18, 1973: In an executive session, the village board changes the agreement. The new wording recognizes the union as the bargaining agent only for union members, rather than all public works employes, and omits a promise that the village will not stage a lock-out while retaining an anti-strike clause.
- July 19, 1973: 20 full-time public works employes strike. Union and village board representatives meet and agree that negotiations will resume if all employes return to work the next day.
- July 20, 1973: Public works employes return to normal duties.
- July 21, 1973: Union representatives go to the municipal building for a negotiating session but are told that the village board had voted to fire all full-time public works employes who did not work July 19.
- July 23, 1973: Eight part-time and temporary public works employes strike in sympathy for fired full-time workers. The village board votes to fire all public works employes who did not report to work either July 19 or 23, withdraws its recognition of the union and terminates negotiations. Mrs. Hayter vows that the fired employes will not be rehired "as long as I am on this board."
- Sept. 21, 1973: Labor department recommends the village rehire the fired employes. Village officials refuse, arguing the department has no jurisdiction.
- Oct. 10, 1977: Seventeen fired employes file suit against the village president, board and manager, asking that they be re-instated to their jobs and given back-pay from July 23, 1973.

STEVEN PETERSEN, 26, has had a son and moved to an Addision apartment since he and 27 other public works employes were fired by Hoffman Estates in 1973 after a one day strike. The 4½-year wait for today's trial of a suit filed by the fired workers has been "a nightmare" for Petersen, who says he finally got his life started again when he got a job with an auto dealership a year ago.

Trials near end as worker case goes to court

John Lampinen
Byline report

They were young then, and the tomorrows were so full of promise.

Steve and Patricia Peterson had married in April that year. They got an apartment and a car and put a little money in the bank, and by summer, she was pregnant with their first child.

He worked for Hoffman Estates' water department. He liked it. He loved the outdoors and being around people and working with his hands, and the job offered him all of that.

BUT THAT WAS a long time ago. They have learned not to build their lives around fragile tomorrows.

"It's been a nightmare. It really has," Mrs. Petersen says. "We can't make any future for ourselves. We have to take it day-by-day."

Petersen was one of 28 members of the Hoffman Estates Public Works Dept. who was fired July 21, 1973 as a result of a one-day strike two days earlier.

Today, a lawsuit for reinstatement and back pay that was filed by 17 of the fired employes is expected to go to trial after four years of continuances, out-of-court negotiations and new judges.

FOR MOST OF the men, a different kind of trial started the day they were fired.

After the initial shock and expectation of a quick settlement vanished, most were faced with the challenge of restructuring their lives.

Many had trouble finding new jobs. A few lost their houses. Most saw their hopes rise and fall with each court date or anticipated settlement that loomed ahead and then failed to materialize.

Now most have jobs in other professions. Few work for public employers any more; the Hoffman Estates controversy, they say, barred them from that option. A handful still hope to return to work for the village.

Most express some bitterness about the situation: toward their union, Local 2041, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes; toward Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter; toward the court system.

AND MOST, after 4½ years, have managed to put their lives back in order.

- Steven A. Gorlinski, who was 19 and part of the water department's dig-up crew when he was fired, is 23 and still lives in Hoffman Estates with his parents. He drives to Wheeling each day where he has worked as a welder for three years.
- Michael L. Ludwick, who was a 26-year-old well technician and a member of the group's negotiating board when he was fired, is 31 and lives in Detroit, Mich. He says he is happy with a job he got with Orkin exterminators, but that before he landed it, he was frustrated in attempts to get public works jobs in other municipalities.
- Robert L. Ackerman, who wad 30 and did street repair work when he was fired, is 35 and has moved out of his parents house into Schaumburg. Ackerman initially was unsure what would happen to him because he is deaf, but Village Mgr. George P. Longmeyer is credited with helping

Clubhouse plans OKd over protests

Plans for a $521,400 golf course clubhouse were approved Monday night by Arlington Heights Park District officials after two hours of debate with about 30 residents.

The board of commissioners voted 3 to 2 to build the controversial two-story building at the 18-hole golf course under construction at Wilke and Central roads.

Most of the citizens urged the park board to stay within the $1.5 million golf course budget approved by voters in a referendum last October. Park officials now expect to borrow about $200,000 to build the clubhouse.

Several of the residents also asked park officials to conduct another referendum before borrowing more money for the golf course project, but the commissioners rejected that idea because of the cost of the referendum and escalating construction costs.

PARK BOARD Pres. Jacqueline Grunewald end Commissioners Robert Rohleder and Lloyd Meyer voted in favor of the clubhouse bids. Commissioners Kathryn Graham and Bruce Westerberg voted against he project.

The park board Monday also voted unanimously to spend $100,284 for a maintenance building and $10,360 for parking lot and driveway lighting.

Plans for the clubhouse call for a pro shop, and children's nursery, a manager's room, locker rooms and areas for storing golf carts on the main level with a snack bar, a dining area, a kitchen and a small apartment on the upper level.

Park officials envision the clubhouse making at least $15,000 a year after its third year of operation, but the residents disagreed and said the extra money needed to build the clubhouse should not be borrowed.

A report prepared by Larry Maholland, the park district's business manager, said possible uses of the building include bowling league dinners, retirement dinners, wedding receptions, fraternal organization dinners and golf league dinners.

"We're trying to make as much money as we can and return those profits to the people. All of the information we have shows we will make more money with a dining facility than we will with a tiny snack bar," Rohleder said.

THE DINING area and snack bar areas combined will seat 125-175 persons.

"It's not a question of us going first class or second class. It's a money-making proposition for us," Meyer said.

Because of the opposition from citizens, Mrs. Graham made a mo-

Business to reflect rise in prime rate

by JOHN N. FRANK

Northwest suburban residents will see the first effects of Monday's increase in the prime lending rate to its highest level in two years by the way their employers conduct business and set prices rather than in the interest they pay on home and auto loans, say area financial institution officials.

Moves by New York-based Chase Manhattan, Bank of New York, First National Bank of Chicago and First Pennsylvania Monday to raise their prime rates to 7.75 per cent will result, financial experts say, in:

- Slowdown of business expansion and possible elimination of some jobs.
- Increase in the prices of many consumer goods.
- Discouragement of long-term construction projects such as office buildings or multi-family dwellings.
- Eventual increase in mortgage rates to about 9 per cent begining next year when selling picks up after the traditional winter lull.

THE PRIME RATE rise also had immediate results contributing to the continuation of a down trend on the stock market with the Dow Jones Average slipping 5.93 points to 502.32 Monday, a two-year low.

"If these rates continue to climb it's going to shut down the economy before it really gets going again," said Winn Davidson, president of the Bank of Palatine.

"Looking at past experience, it's jusst an inflationary pressure which will raise costs which are ultimately passed on to the consumer," said Robert Holzer, senior vice president of Northwest Federal Savings, Chicago.

Monday's announcements of increases in the prime rate, which banks charge on loans to their biggest and most creditworthy customers, came as no surprise following a similar increase Friday by Citibank of New York, the nation's second largest bank.

MOST OF THE nation's 20 largest banks had followed Citibank's lead by the end of business Monday, raising their prime rates from 7½ to 7¾ per cent, a two-year high.

"The major effect they (mortgage seekers) would see is that there will be an increase in rates of ¼ per cent up to 9 per cent come the next active market period at the beginning of 1978," said Albert Aukers, chairman of Union Federal Savings & Loan Assn., Chicago. "Right now the supply (of mortgage money) is good and the demand is decreasing," he said.

Leo Dignan, senior vice president of St. Paul Federal Savings & Loan Assn., Chicago, said mortgage rates are more closely tied to the rate at which persons save their money than to the prime rate.

Auto loan interest rates should not be affected because demand remains fairly constant, Davidson said.

Bond set for accused deaf mute

A deaf mute charged with killing 2 women could be released from Cook County Jail soon, although his case is still baffling criminal justice experts throughout the state.

Circuit Court Judge Joseph J. Schneider issued an order Monday setting bond for deaf mtue Donald Lang at $50,000, nullifying his prior bail conditions.

Lang, 32, was previously ordered to be put in a "secured setting" where he could be prepared to stand trial by learning to communicate with sign language.

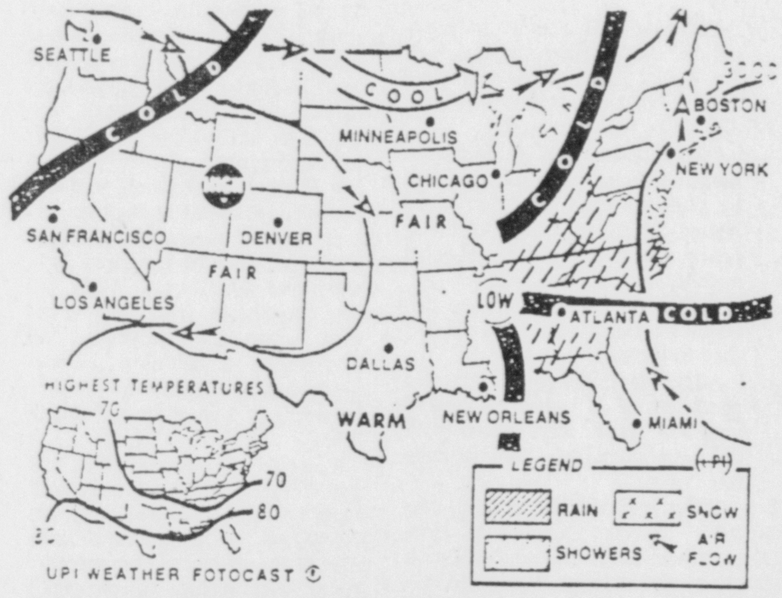

Lang was arrested in 1965 for the murder of a West Side woman suspected of being a prostitute, but was declared incompetent to stand trial. In July, 1971, the Illinois Supreme Court ruled Lang should stand trial, but he was released from court custody because witnesses against him had died.

Lang was then convicted of murdering a second woman suspected of being a prostitute in July, 1972, but the Illinois Appellate Court reversed the conviction on grounds he was unable to communicate with his attorneys. The court then ordred a new trial.

Israel has nuclear bombs, article says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Israel has assembled a secret nuclear arsenal through uranium thefts in Europe and America, which were subsequently covered up, according to an article released Monday by Rolling Stone.

"The CIA estimates Israel has 15 nuclear bombs, and that's a conservative figure, and we've heard reports which are unconfirmed that they have up to 150 bombs," Howard Kohn, co-author of the article with Barbara Newman, told a news conference at the magazine's headquarters.

The story was denied by the office of the Israel consul general in New York, which said, "The entire story is baseless and pure speculation and is being circulated by the enemies of Israel to blacken the reputation of Israel." The office repeated the official Israeli stand that Israel will not be the first country to introduce nuclear weapons to the Middle East.

THE ARTICLE SAID Mossad, the Israeli intelligence service, set up a special commando unit in 1967 or 1968 that carried out four uranium hijackings in Europe — two with the cooperation of the French and West German governments.

Israel took to hijacking after it was forced to stop a 10-year smuggling operation at the Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corp., processing facility in Appolo, Pa., which netted 200 to 400 pounds of bomb-grade uranium, the article said.

"That's enough for two Hiroshima-type bombs," Kohn said.

Rolling Stone said the stolen material was used to give Israel a "last-resort military alternative" in its conflict with the Arabs.

THE TWO AUTHORS said their two principal sources were a highly placed Pentagon consultant and a former official of the National Security Agency.

The General Accounting office and three congressional committees currently are investigating the thefts of nuclear material in the United States.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has estimated that some 8,000 pounds of uranium and plutonium are "missing" in the United States since the nuclear program began 20 years ago, including "a significant amount of nuclear material" from a plant in Irwin, Tenn., the authors said.

The magazine claimed the CIA brought the Pennsylvania operation to the attention of President Lyndon Johnson in 1966, but Johnson ordered then CIA director, Richard Helms, to keep the matter secret.

THE FORD WHITE House was also briefed . . . (and) the same information was handed over to the Carter White House in early 1977. It has now become a point of contention in the ongoing debate over whether to indict Helms in the unrelated CIA-Chile case," the article said.

"Helms has indicated he might feel compelled to divulge certain government secrets if he is indicted, and Carter administration officials allegedly are worried that the (Pennsylvania) case and Johnson's coverup may be among them," it said.

Rolling Stone said that in France during early 1968, the commando unit used tear gas to overpower the driver of a 25-ton truck full of uranium and then smuggled the uranium to clandestine military bases in the Negev desert.

Another nuclear shipment was hijacked in England soon afterwards, Rolling Stone said.

The magazine said the same unit subsequently pulled two such hijackings with the cooperation of the French and West German governments in exchange for cash and advanced nuclear technology. These hijackings were staged to disguise the transactions, it said.

Affairs to close by Dec. 10 under court agreement

by PAT DOYLE

Time is running out for a sex shop in Elk Grove Township.

After weeks of legal delay the proprietor of Affairs, 2407 E. Oakton St., agreed Monday to move out of the building by Dec. 10 and to pay its owners more than $1,600.

Affairs, a business police say is a front for prostitution, can continue its 24-hour operation until Dec. 10.

THE OWNERS OF the building, Jack Skaathan and Robert Nogan, agreed to wait until Dec. 10 to get rid of Affairs because it is easier and quicker than going through with the jury trial, said Lawrence Fretzin, their attorney.

Neither Fretzin nor Richard Neville, attorney for Affairs, would comment on why the proprietor of the alleged prostitution operation agreed to give up.

George Demir, Chicago, the reported owner of Affairs, sat quietly in the rear of the courtroom while attorneys worked out the agreement. He and Neville refused comment afterward.

The agreement marked the beginning of the end of an embarrassing situation which began after Skaathan noticed in September that electric signs at his building were obviously not advertising a sign-design studio.

THE SIGN ADVERTISES "Affairs, 24 hours, seven days a week." Newspaper ads for Affairs describe it as a "sketching facility" with a warm comfortable atmosphere with attractive girls. Workers at the operation call it a "male membership" club costing as much as $80 a visit.

Skaathan thought Demir was going to operate a sign-design studio in his building when the lease was signed — not an operation like Affairs.

Fretzen called an attorney for Demir and asked him to get his clients out. Fretzin said the attorney replied, "Is it a matter of money?" and offered to pay more rent. Fretzin said he refused more money. Still Affairs would not leave. Skaathan and Nogan filed suit to have the Affairs operators evicted.

A summons was finally posted after Cook County Sheriff's Deputies were unable to locate Demir. On Sept. 23 the case took a new twist when sheriff's police raided Affairs and arrested two persons on prostitution charges. Brenda Smith, 26, of Chicago, was arrested for prostitution and Jack Michaels, 34, of Schiller Park, was charged with operating a house of prostitution. The pair is expected to stand trial Dec. 19.

Affairs reopened the day after the raid.

THE PROSTITUTION and eviction cases both came to court Oct. 17 but Demir still could not be located. Following the Oct. 17 hearing Fretzin charged that Neville was deliberately delaying the case so that Affairs could make more money.

"They get as many continuances as they can," he said.

The case was continued until Monday.

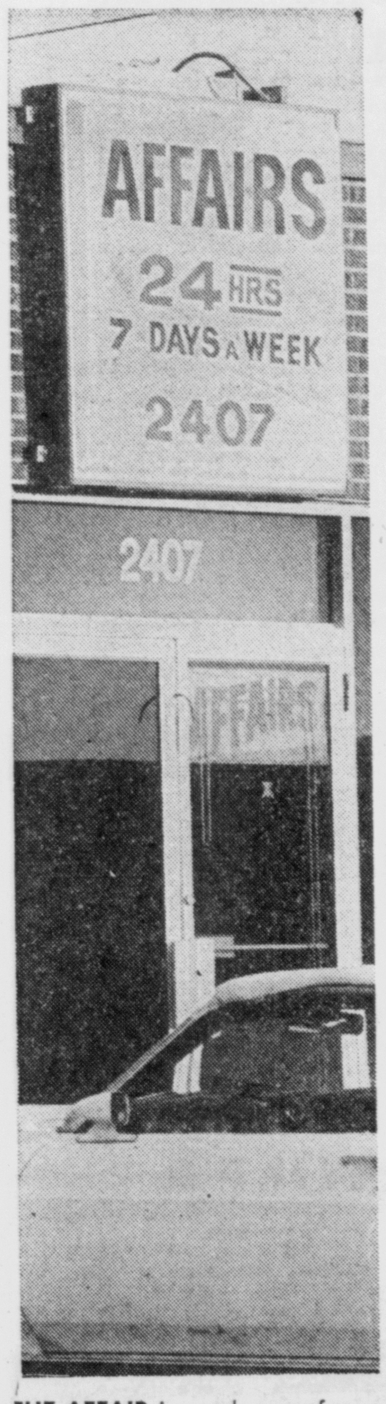

"The longer the delay, the more money they make." He said going through with the case in the courts would have delayed eviction for at least a year.

THE AGREEMENT states that "during the period through Dec. 10 the defendant shall pay for the use and occupancy of the premises the sum of $1,633." That is equivalent to the rent due since Sept. 1. Skaathan and Nogen have refused to accept rent payments from Affairs pending the outcome of the eviction battle.

The agreement declares the lease null and void and says that Affairs unlawfully occupies the premises.

"This is 4,000 per cent bettern than I expected," Skaathan said. He said he would refuse to allow Affairs to lease the property for any price.

Robert Napora, an investigator with the Cook County Sheriff's police, said he was pleased with the settlement. "I'm surprised they didn't stall," he said. "Usually it takes four or five months" to get rid of such an establishment.

THE AFFAIR is nearly over for an alleged sex shop in Elk Grove Township. The proprietor agreed Monday to move out by Dec. 10.

Chase ends Montreal bank heist

MONTREAL (UPI) — A bank robber who fled in a poilce-provided getaway car with four hostages was captured Monday following a high-speed chase through the streets of Montreal.

The unidentified, 35-year-old gunman was caught at La Chenaie, eight miles east of Montreal, after releasing all but one hostage — a newspaper reporter.

The reporter had agreed to act as an intermediary in negotiations between police and the gunman to free about a dozen persons held in the bank for three hours.

THE BANDIT, armed with what appeared to be a rifle or sawed-off shotgun, climbed into the escape car about 6 p.m. and drove off at a high speed, followed by a half-dozen police cars.

He stopped during the chase to free bank manager Valere Boutin and two accountants, but he kept the reporter with him until the end of the drama.

Police sources said the gunman, who robbed an undetermined amount of cash from the bank, agreed to release his hostages one at a time once he was off the island of Montreal.

Immediately prior to leaving, the gunman released several women hostages. They were taken to a hospital.

UPI PHOTOGRAPHER Charles Palmer said one of the released women hostages "was completely hysterical when she came out of the bank but the other four seemed OK."

He said the gunman used his three hostages as a shield when he ran to the waiting car.

The hostage drama began at about 3 p.m. when the gunman was surprised by police as he tried to leave an east Montreal branch of the Canadian National Bank following a holdup.

He immediately barricaded himself in the bank with about a dozen hostages, most of them employes, and demanded an escape car and free passage out of the city.

Police headed by Detective Lt. Carlo Rossi set up a telephone link with the bank from a nearby store and began negotiations.

While machinegun-armed police surrounded the area, officers brought a late-model car to the front of the bank and placed two large garbage bags, believed to contain cash, in the trunk of the vehicle.

Link seen in 9 Tampa murders

DADE CITY, Fla. (UPI) — Nine women have been killed in unsolved slayings in just over six months in the Tampa Bay area and police said Monday the cases have many similarities.

The latest victim — whose body was found in a rural area of Pasco County Friday — was identified as Emily Ellen Grieve, 38, of Fort Lauderdale. She was shot in the head with a .22-caliber weapon and her body was clad only in a bra and a print blouse pulled up around her neck.

The body, discovered by a father and son who were hunting, was hidden behind dune-like piles of fill dirt about 500 yards from where the body of another woman was found in December 1973.

THE 1973 MURDER remains unsolved, as well as similar slayings in 1975 and 1976 in which one body was found in rural Pasco County and the other in rural Hillsborough County.

Three of the nine women killed this year were shot to death with a .22-caliber weapon, one was killed with a .38-caliber weapon, three were strangled and one burned to death in a motel room fire which police said was started deliberately.

The cause of death of the ninth victim has not yet been determined, and there is strong feeling among investigators her death is not connected with the others.

"We've got to presume they are related until we find something to disprove that theory," one officer said.

AT LEAST FIVE of the women are believed to have been either killed in Tampa and dumped in rural Pasco County or taken to the remote areas after being picked up in Tampa.

In addition, three others were found in rural Hillsborough and Pinellas counties.

A special 15-member team from Pasco, Pinellas and Hernando counties is assigned full-time to the murder investigations.

Mrs. Grieve had been in Tampa three weeks and was reported missing by her sister Oct. 10. She was last seen at a bus stop.

At least six of the other victims were known to frequent bars and to hitchhike for transportation. Some were go-go dancers and some had prostitution records. Of the three murders prior to this year, one was a prostitute and the other two were topless dancers.

Mrs. Grieve had just been hired as a maid at a north Tampa motel and was believed to have been headed for work when she disappeared. One of the earlier victims had stayed at the same motel the day she disappeared, stopping there after her car had broken down.

Latest scheme brewing: a beer named 'Billy'

• "Billy," a beer brewed to the liking of Billy Carter and bearing his signed endorsement, goes on sale for the first time next Monday after a kickoff ceremony in President Carter's hometown of Plains, Ga. The first cans of beer were shipped to outlets in Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and Indiana. Billy personally picked the brew from among seven choices while visiting the Falls City Brewing Co. in Louisville. Requests for the beer have been received from "all over the country." While visiting the brewery last month, Billy complained that his position as promoter of the beer was a bit hard, saying he would have to work up to 12 days a year at the job.

• The Chicago Radio Theatre will present its production of Mary Shelley's "Frankenstein" today at 10:30 p.m. on WFMT, 98.7 FM and 1450 AM. The radio theater production company, headed by Yuri Rasovsky, traditionally gives Chicago area audiences a thriller to listen to in the dark around Halloween.

• Bing Crosby's last will and testament was filed for probate Monday, leaving cash gifts totaling $400,000 to his widow, relatives, church, schools and friends and the bulk of his estate to a private trust in his name. The document, filed in Superior Court of San Mateo County, gave no dollar amount to his estate. Crosby said in the will that if anyone sought to "conspire or cooperate" to contest the will, "I specifically disinherit each such person."

• Roman Polanski appeared before a judge in Santa Monica Monday and explained he was in Munich to "sell" his latest movie, "The Hurricane." He added it was not a beer drinking trip to the Oktoberfest. The judge accepted his story, but reminded Polanski he must show up Dec. 19 to begin his jail term for seducing a 13-year-old girl.

• Chicago is pondering over what to do with a pregnant police patrolperson. One of the 385 women on the police force, Susan Overton, asked for reassignment from patrol on the West Side to a desk job because she is two months pregnant. Police officials and the city lawyer are studying the request, fearing the reassignment will leave them open for charges of reverse discrimination.

him get a street repair job in Rolling Meadows.

AND THEN THERE are the cases like Petersen's.

He was 21 then. He had worked in the department 2½ years and says that he actually missed work on the day of the strike because of a dental appointment.

The savings account was drained within a month. They lost their car. They lost their apartment. For a while, they moved in with his parents. Then, they moved in with her parents.

Their son was born with a mild case of cerebral palsy. Mrs. Petersen believes it may have been caused by her nervous problems.

Petersen got a custodial job with Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. When it ended after a couple of years, there was a series of jobs without futures. There were mornings when he'd get up at 6:30, grab the want ads and knock on doors until 6 p.m. And there was welfare.

"It just killed him to have to go for public assistance," Mrs. Petersen says. "It just killed him."

FOR ONE SIX-MONTH period, she says, "our marriage had gone so far apart that we didn't even know each other any more" and they would argue regularly into the night.

"It took us approximately until July 1 of last year to actually get our lives started again," she says.

That is when Petersen got a job with Long Chevrolet in Elmhurst. They moved to Addison, and he talks casually about buying a house. They are, they say, starting all over again.

YET MRS. PETERSON cannot get the nightmare of the last four years out of her mind.

Now, finally, the issue is going to court. Now, finally, an end of the ordeal is in sight. But the Petersons remember all the other times the matter was supposed to be resolved.

"We thought this would have been settled so long ago," Mrs. Petersen says. "To me, this is still a nightmare.

"Each time it comes up again, we naturally build ourhopes up, we naturally build our hopes up, any more."

Naked, mutilated body of boy found

A private scavenger Monday discovered the naked and mutilated body of a 9-year-old boy in a portable garbage bin behind a South Side grocery store. The boy tentatively was identified by schoolmates as Richard Lee Miller. The boy's mother said she last saw him late Sunday afternoon. The child had been sexually molested and strangled, police said. Joseph Harris, 32, the scavenger, told police he discovered the boy's body about 7:30 a.m. when he was pushing a garbage bin to his truck. Several cardboard boxes shifted, he said, revealing a foot. "The boy died a violent death," said police Capt. John J. Nolan.

Bejnarowicz account put on ice

A Cook County Circuit Court judge issued an order Monday barring a Swiss bank from releasing money from the account of Zygmunt R. Bejnarowicz, a key figure in an international custody battle. Bejnarowicz, a dentist, reportedly has fled from the Chicago area with his son, Wojciech, 7, after custody of the child was awarded to the child's mother, Bejnarowicz's estranged wife. Margaret Bejnarowicz's attorney, Mel Sloan, sought the temporary restraining order to block the transfer of any of the $48,170 in Bejnarowicz's account in the Union State Bank of Switzerland.

Sloan said the bank's Chicago branch was notified after the order Monday. The order, signed by Judge John J. Crown, also prohibited Bejnarowicz's mother or sister from obtaining the money for him. Mrs. Bejnarowicz was awarded permanent custody of Wojciech Aug. 29, but the father disappeared with the boy. It apparently was the thrd time the boy had been spirited away by one of his parents.

Hardiman to head county jail

Sheriff's police Capt. Phillip Hardiman Monday was appointed to succeed Winston Moore as head of the Cook County Jail. Moore was suspended in February by Sheriff Richard J. Elrod when he was indicted on brutality charges. He was fired Monday as Hardiman was appointed. Moore has been acquitted in two trials of all charges against him. Hardiman, 41, has been assistant to the acting executive director since Moore's ouster. He said he will start a new training program designed to "professionalize" jail guards. "I think I can do the job better than anyone else," he said.

Illinois briefs

Investors offered money back

Since January, 834 Illinois investors who were illegally sold some $3.5 million in securities have been offered their money back by 111 sellers, Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon announced Monday. Dixon, who as secretary of state is responsible for administering the state's securities laws, told a luncheon gathering his office has registered 349 securities offerings totaling some $6 million since he took office nine months ago. He said 105 issues of securities for trading totaling $2.5 billion have been authorized by the office during the same period.

"We have also issued prohibition orders against 27 securities issuers, stopping them from selling securities until they comply with the law," Dixon said. "In addition, we revoked registrations of four other issuers and suspended registration of another, putting all five out of the securities business until they can satisfy the law for retirement."

Representative returns to seat

State Rep. Peg Breslin, D-Ottawa, returned to the Illinois House Monday for the first time since she was evicted June 30, once again stirring up a complicated controversy that probably won't be settled until next year. Through an intricate series of events since she was stripped of her seat, Mrs. Breslin was able to return to her seat under an Illinois Supreme Court ruling which has stayed her eviction. Three state representatives Monday filed a motion to evict her again, but they were pessimistic it would be taken up during the fall session. The three, Reps. Edward Bluthhardt, R-Schiller Park; Philip Collins, R-Calumet City; and Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, also are involved in the suit, which has gone to the Supreme Court. Mrs. Breslin spent much of her first hour of the fall session Monday at her desk, minus its nameplate, shaking hands with well-wishing lawmakers.

Display '78 license after Dec. 1

Motorists should not display 1978 license plates before the legal date — Dec. 1, Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon said Monday. Dixon said more than 532,540 new passenger plates have been mailed so far. He said over-the-counter sales at banks and currency exchanges will begin Dec. 1.

Lawyer loses his claim to $90,000 Arlington will

The $90,000 estate of an Arlington Heights woman is now in the hands of the Cook County Treasurer's office after her will became the first testament to be successfully challenged by the Cook County State's Attorney's Office.

Jessie D. Burrows, 70, formerly of the Magnus Farm, a home for the elderly at 801 E. Central Rd., left her entire estate to her Wilmette lawyer, Raymond V. Najarian, in a 1967 will he drew up for the woman, Assistant State's Atty. Peter Coorlas said Monday.

The woman's will was accepted into the probate court division June 22, 1976, shortly after Ms. Burrows died. It was challenged by Coorlas who charged that Ms. Burrows was under the "influence, domination and control" of Najarian and therefore the will was invalid.

The attorney did not file an answer to any of the charges made by Coorlas. In April, Najarian withdrew his claim to the estate, allowing it to be placed with the county treasurer's office, where it will remain for the next 10 years. Anyone who can prove he is a legitimate heir of Ms. Burrows can claim the estate within that time. If no heirs are found within 10 years, the money automatically becomes the property of the county, Coorlas said.

COORLAS SAID Monday he challenged the will because Najarian held a confidential relationship with Ms. Burrows and not only drew up the will but was the sole heir.

A further investigation found nothing that would have benefited Najarian's case to claim the estate, Coorlas said. "It's the first time we've been successful at contesting a will like this."

Ms. Burrows died last year without any known relatives. Coorlas said the state can challenge any will where there are no known relatives, or natural heirs to an estate.

Najarian was not available for comment Monday.

Ms. Burrows had lived at the Magnus Farm in Arlington Heights for several years before her death.

Magnus Farm administrative personnel said Monday they could not comment on Ms. Burrow's stay at the home.

Dem committeemen back Seith bid for Senate seat

Alex Seith, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, Monday announced a list of 49 endorsements, including five Northwest suburban Democratic committeemen and one state legislator.

Endorsing Seith, 43, in his bid to run against incumbent Sen. Charles H. Percy, a Republican, are township committeemen, Walter Saroka, Palatine; Donald Norman, Wheeling; John Morrissey, Schaumburg; Bill Rose, Elk Grove; and Nicholas Blase, Maine.

State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, also endorsed Seith.

At a news conference Monday, the Hinsdale lawyer said Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., probably will not enter the Senate race next year.

SEITH'S CANDIDACY has been endorsed by county chairmen in Simon's district.

"I wouldn't want to speak for him (Simon)," Seith said. "All his friends have told me that they've told him not to run for it."

Michael E. Slape of Bond County and Alfred Hilmes of Clinton, both in Simon's 24th Congressional District, both are endorsing Seith, he said.

Seith, who recently returned from a 10-day campaign swing through Southern Illinois, described Percy as "the sometime senator."

"He has not been seen in areas of Southern Illinois since before the last election," he said.

Pharmacist has "tried them all..." ...discovers weight control program that really works!

Pharmacist Dan Smith of Burger's Drug Store in St. Charles, Illinois is a NaturSlim "believer" after losing 18 pounds in just two weeks. After hearing so much about the NaturSlim program from customers and seeing the excellent results they were having, Dan decided to try it himself.

"In my many years as a pharmacist, I've seen and tried numerous weight-loss plans, but none have worked as well for me as NaturSlim. And NaturSlim is very nutritional too!"

After three months, Dan has not regained any of the lost pounds either, as so often happens when "rebounding" from starvation diet plans. He maintains his weight by taking NaturSlim once daily . . . and eating normally otherwise.

Dan says, "It was surprisingly easy, too! I didn't have to attend any weigh-ins, starve myself or do any special exercises."

With the NaturSlim program, there are no shots, drugs or long lists of forbidden foods. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day.

The next time you are in the St. Charles area, stop by Burger's Drugs and see Dan yourself. He'll tell you personally what he thinks about NaturSlim!

BROKERS KATHY Roderick and Dave Evans keep on top of the stock market in order to advise investors in their Buffalo Grove High School economics class on buying and selling stocks. Using weekly stock market simulations, the class teaches students about market operations, supply and demand and business competition. It also teaches them not to fear investing.

Students profit from class teaching ins, outs of stocks

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

Anxious investors pour over the morning's stock market quotations, debating whether to buy, sell or hold.

Bill Morris groans as he reads that Sunshine Mines has fallen off again, down $3 per share since he bought it just a few weeks ago.

Rather than absorb a $300 loss though, he decides to hold onto the stock in the hope that it will climb again.

MORRIS CAN AFFORD to gamble a little because neither the stocks he's holding nor the money he's investing are real. His investments are limited to a simulated stock market that's part of a Buffalo Grove High School economics class that teaches students the ins and outs of market operations, supply and demand and business competition.

At the start of the semester, students were given $5,000 in funny money to invest in stocks purchased through three student-run brokerage firms.

Trading is restricted to Tuesdays with the three-member firms advising investors on market trends, offering tips on buying and selling, establishing their own brokerage fees and keeping records of all transactions.

The firm with the highest profits and the most clients and the investor who fares best will get a hamburger, fries and pop on teacher Jim Allen at the end of the semester.

It's Allen's hope that the stock market simulation will give students enough of an understanding and experience with investing that they won't be afraid to try it later in life.

"MOST OF THEIR parents don't invest in stocks and that means they aren't very likely to either unless they get some experience with the market," he said.

Before the class' trading sessions began, students got a one-week crash course in stock market terminology, how to read market quotations, what to consider when buying and selling stocks and how to deal with a brokerage firm.

They also each had an interview with a professional broker and got his perspective on market operations.

"The first thing they all wanted was tips on what to buy," Allen said. "Some followed the information and really got pounded. That was a lesson in itself."

EVEN THOUGH brokers are experts, they are not all knowing, Allen warned his students. It's up to the investor to study the economy in general, the prospects for particular industries and the past records of individual companies before buying or selling stocks, he told them.

Besides learning how to be wise investors and how the stock market operates, Allen's students also learn about supply and demand, business competition and selling themselves.

In vying for the loyalties of the 21 investors in the class, the three brokerage firms advertise, manipulate their rates up and down and try gimmicks.

The drawing card of the General Profits Brokerage Corp. is a computer-assisted list of stocks that are most likely to increase significantly in value during the semester.

BROKER SCOTT Johnson compiled the list by looking over quotations for a previous three-month period, finding a pattern in the numbers and searching out stocks that currently fit these patterns.

While the "computer man," as his classmates call him, awes many with his calculations, he was not able to convince Mary Arnieri to hold on to her stock in Trans World Airlines on a recent trading day.

1 suspect nabbed, 1 held in robbery

Cook County Sheriff's police and officers from four suburbs combed fields near Briarwood Lake in Mount Prospect before apprehending one of two men who allegedly robbed Ben's Cut Rate Liquors, 1803 W. Algonquin Rd., of $976.

Police refused to release the name of the man taken into custody saying charges would not be filed until today.

Police late in the evening still were searching for the man who held up the store while brandishing a sawed-off shotgun.

One of the robbers walked into the liquor store with the shotgun concealed under a waist-length coat and announced the robbery.

MARK MAIORANO, manager of the store, said the man drew the shotgun and told everyone in the store to put their hands up. He demanded all of the money in the cash register and Maiorano ordered the clerk to obey.

The clerk, Jackie Hayes, 20, of Elk Grove Village, took the bills out of the cash drawer and put them in a paper bag. The robber then took the bag and ordered everyone to get down on the floor. "He seemed nervous," Ms. Hayes said. "He was shaking."

The man fled, but could not get to his car, a brown Chevrolet Malibu, because Maiorano was chasing him. He climbed a fence behind a nearby Pizza Hut and fled into nearby fields. Police from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Elk Grove and Des Plaines as well as from Cook County arrived and began searching the fields for the suspect, who was not caught.

"I chased him," Maiorano said. "He tried to shoot me, but I kept ducking behind cars. He had a single shot shotgun, I saw that right away. I was hoping he'd let go with one because then he wouldn't have anything left."

Police said they obtained the name of a possible suspect from a witness. The suspect had been arrested for another armed robbery several weeks ago and police were warned the suspect "would not hesitate" to use the shotgun.

Dogs were called to follow the scent of the man, and the police were ordered out of the field so they wouldn't throw off the dogs.

Parks OK $521,400 clubhouse

tion the park district build a clubhouse not to exceed $300,000 — the estimated cost of the clubhouse prior to the referendum and before park officials had decided what facilities the building should include. However, her motion was not seconded.

"Not a single citizen has come to me and said they're in favor of this and these people have said they don't want it, so I don't think we have a choice," Mrs. Graham said.

LEADERS OF TWO homeowners' associations said they had polled a total of 125 residents and only three were in favor of the park board borrowing money to build the clubhouse.

The golf course referendum for $1.5 million was approved last year by 52.6 per cent of the 6,280 voters.

Park officials say the course will be open next September at the earliest and possibly not until May 1979.

Conservative-moderate clash over GOP post likely

by KURT BAER

A battle is brewing between conservative and moderate Republicans for control of the Wheeling Township committeeman's post in the wake of incumbent GOP committeeman Frend H. Yonker's decision not to seek re-election.

Several members of the Regular Republican Organization are eyeing the job, and sources in the Independent Conservative party in Arlington Heights said Monday conservative candidates also are likely to make a bid for the committeeman's office.

The race this year could be the most hotly contested in Republican ranks since 1966 when now State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, defeated Tom Novotny by 308 votes.

"I know for a fact that there have been several conservative candidates mentioned and I think the chances are good that we will have a candidate," said one Conservative Caucus source.

SEVERAL MODERATE Republicans, easier to identify because of their history of involvement in the township organization, said Monday they are weighing a bid for committeeman.

Among the possible candidates are:

• Dwight Walton, former Arlington Heights trustee and a Republican precinct captain who said, "I should make up my mind within the next couple of weeks about running."

• Ed Murnane, former administrative assistant to U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, who said, "I'm not ruling it out." Murnane now runs his own consulting business and the time required for the committeeman's job will be a factor in his decision, he said.

Also mentioned frequently is William Reid, Buffalo Grove, a High School Dist. 214 administrator and a faithful GOP party worker.

"I'm certainly interested in what happens to the committeeman's post, as all good Republicans are," Reid said Monday. And for his own personal intentions, "I have been giving it some thought, but haven't made up my mind," he said.

Yonkers, 52, announced last Monday he would not seek re-election, citing a desire to devote more time to his insurance business.

The committeeman is responsible for many of the "nuts and bolts" operations that include canvassing precincts, slating candidates and raising money.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Village Pres. James T. Ryan said he has thought about running for committeeman, but added, "My inclination is probably not to do so."

Ryan discounted the possibility of a conservative challenge to the Regular Republicans, noting that most ultra-conservatives have not worked in the township organization.

But in recent years, conservatives have demonstrated a willingness to go outside traditional Republican channels in order to run their own candidates.

"I've had four telephone calls from conservatives in the past two days," said one Conservative Caucus member. "I think it's safe to say the interest in definitely there.

Suit filed against owner of Schneller Furniture

A lawsuit filed Monday by the Illinois Attorney General's office charges Camille J. Burny Jr., owner of the Schneller Furniture Co. of Arlington Heights, with deceptive business practices and consumer fraud.

The charges stem from the company's advertising and prices during its "going out of business" sale from Aug. 25 to early October.

Also named in the suit was Martin Goodman, a salesman in charge of the liquidation sale.

Burny, of River Forest, has been the sole owner of the furniture store since January when he purchased the interest in the company held by Joseph Schneller.

Schneller, who was not involved in the liquidation sale this summer, now runs the Schneller Interiors Galerie, 212 S. Dwyer Ave., Arlington Heights.

Burny and Goodman are charged with violating the Illinois Consumer Fraud Act and the Deceptive Trade Practices Act of Illinois.

The maximum penalty of $50,000 is being sought from both men, said Donald Mulack, chief of the consumer fraud and protection division of the attorney general's office.

Newspaper advertisements and signs in the furniture store at 17 S. Dunton Ave. said shoppers would save 20 to 60 per cent on all items, but the sale prices were higher than the pre-sale prices, Mulack said.

Patrols boosted after tires cut

Police increased patrols Monday night on three Arlington Heights streets in an effort to apprehend the vandals who slashed more than 11 car tires and deflated four others earlier in the day.

Police said they had no suspects, but believed the damage was done by juveniles.

The tires were on at least eight cars on the 900 blocks of Walnut, Mitchell and Fernandez avenues, police said. A car reportedly owned by Susan Brandt of 819 N. Fernandez Ave., suffered the most damage after all four of its tires were slashed, police said.

The slash marks indicate the same tool probably was used in each case, police said.

Lutheran home vies for national awards

The new wing of the Lutheran Home and Services for the Aged in Arlington Heights has been nominated by its architect for local and national awards in exterior lighting and decorative brickwork.

Frank Gutowsky of the Arlington Heights architectural firm Hundrieser-Gutowsky and Associates, said he has entered the four-story, 66,000-square-foot addition in contests sponsored by the National Lighting Institute and a concrete association.

The addition, 800 W. Oakton St., was completed in September and includes a cafeteria, crafts room and housing for residents of the home.

Its architectural features include decorative exterior lighting and brickwork and a landscaped courtyard.

Gutowsky said he does not know when the winners of the awards will be announced.

Prospect, Wheeling bands shine at meet

Two High Schoo Dist. 214 bands walked away with honors from a band competition recently at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana.

Competing against bands from 78 schools, Prospect High School's band took third place in show competition and Wheeling High School's band took first place in both parade and show competitions.

FIREMAN GIVES mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to victim of fire in the District of Columbia Monday. The blaze at the two-story Cinema Follies, apparently triggered by faulty gasoline heater explosion, killed five persons and injured at least five others.

Eskimo hunt of whale nixed

Chief Justicee Warren Burger Monday issued a last-minute rebuff to Eskimos seeking to continue their native custom of hunting the bowhead whale this spring. Burger refused to order Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to object to the International Whaling Commission's ban on bowhead hunting for next spring's hunting season. Any objections had to be filed by a deadline of midnight London time, or 7 p.m. CDT.

The ban was imposed by the commission last June. The lawsuit by the Alaskan Whaling Commission, representing Eskimo whaling captains, was touched off when the State Department announced its intention not to file an objection. The government has contended that U.S. withdrawal from the bowhead ban would prompt other nations to take the same kind of action with regard to other whale species. The work of the international commission would then be injured beyond repair.

Estimates of the bowhead whale stock range from 500 to 2,000. The whale, which migrates along the ice pack each spring and fall, has more than 20 inches of blubber and grows as long as 60 feet.

Appliance efficiency guide voted

A House-Senate conference committee agreed Monday on compromise legislation requiring efficiency standards for 13 home appliances and providing almost $1.3 billion to weatherproof schools, hospitals and homes of the poor. In moves designed to give unprecedented teeth to appliance standards, conference members decided the government must replace its present efficiency targets with mandatory energy use ceilings within 30 months of passage of the new energy law.

They also tentatively agreed to let citizens sue appliance makers who violate the standards or the federal government if it fails to enforce them. The standards would apply to new refrigerators, freezers, dishwashers, clothes washers, clothes dryers, water heaters, room air conditioners, space heaters, television sets, kitchen ranges, humidifiers or dehumidifiers, central air conditioning units and home furnaces. It was the mst productive day yet in the committee's efforts to put together an energy plan acceptable to President Carter and both houses of Congress.

Dealer claims $2 million gem theft

A San Francisco gem dealer was robbed of $2 million in uninsured jewels Monday in the crowded downtown section and motorists ignored his pleas for help. Victor Nash, president of International Gem Stones, told police he was getting into his car to drive to a gem show when a man stuck a gun in his ribs and ordered him to drive away. The gunman made off with four cases which contained 20,000 individual jewels belonging to Nash. Nash said he had been carrying emeralds, rubies, sapphires, catseyes, precious topaz, morganite, kunzite, aquamarines, beryl star rubies and star sapphires.

Canal vote hints dissatisfaction

The closer than expected 2-to-1 national vote in favor of the new Panama Canal treaties is a signal to the U.S. Senate that Panama is not completely satisfied with terms of the agreements, a government negotiator said Monday. More than 90 per cent of the country's 800,000 voters went to the polls Sunday, officials reported. With 95 per cent of the color-coded paper ballots counted, the vote was 463,664 yes and 228,697 no. "A massive vote in favor wasn't expected because we're paying a price for the treaties," negotiator Carlos Lopez Guevara told reporters. Downplaying an earlier prediction by Panama's chief canal treaty negotiator, Romulo Escobar Bethancourt, that the treaty would win 85 per cent approval, Lopez Guevara said: "We're sending a message to the U.S. Senate that we're not entirely satisfied with the treaties."

U.N. arms boycott of Africa urged

African delegations, angered by a crackdown on dissent in South Africa, Monday demanded the U.N. Security Council impose a comprehensive arms and economic boycott against the white-ruled nation. Speaking on behalf of the African group, Ambassador Yahmoud Mestiri of Tunisia said the time had come for the Council to act beyond issuing condemnations of the South Africans. He recalled that the Council in March deferred a decision on four African-proposed resolutions in hopes of successfully concluding negotiations on independence for Namibia, South Africa's former mandate of South West Africa.

"Events of the few past days," he said, referring to the closure of two black newspapers and imposition of stiff penalties against critics of the government, "have exposed the true intentions of South Africa." U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young in March was instrumental in averting a vote on the African resolutions, which included an arms and economic boycott, proposing a negotiated settlement on Namibia, in which the five Western members of the Council were to act as intermediaries.

MELVON WILLIAMS, 6, of Detroit, shows his displeasure with receiving a shot against measles, rubella, whooping cough, polio, diptheria and tetanus Monday. He received his shot after many school students were turned away from class because they could not provide proof of state-mandated inoculations. With Melvon at Detroit's Grace-Ross Clinic is his mother, Debra Williams, center, and public health nurse, Edna Bibbs.

Hijacking sanctions bill proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., with the backing of the Airline Pilots Assn., Monday proposed legislation for a boycott of air service to any country the president finds to be aiding and abetting terrorist hijackings.

Ribicoff said the Library of Congress has determined that countries now in that category include the Soviet Union, China, North Korea, Cuba, Libya, Algeria, Syria, Yemen, Iraq, Lebanon, Tanzania, the Congo and Zaire.

He also urged other sanctions against such nations, calling air terrorism "an ongoing and continuous war."

RIBICOFF'S BILL would in addition require the President to list countries in which air security is lax, so that publicity about the resulting vulnerability to terrorism could influence world opinion. As examples, he cited Spain, France and the airports in Rome and Athens.

ALPA president J. J. O'Donnell, appearing with Ribicoff at a news conference, said strong measures must be taken or pilots will have to take action.

O'Donnell and his group have threatened a strike of 24 or 48 hours to protest air terrorism, but he said stronger measures may become necessary.

Unless the world takes action, he said, "The airplanes are going to be put on the ground and left there until the . . . world wakes up."

RIBICOFF SAID a CIA paper showed 79 per cent of air terrorists have escaped death or punishment, and it is time to get tough, especially on Algeria and Libya, which he said were the main sources of terrorism in the world.

Under the bill, the president would be required to identify countries that "aid and abet" terrorism, triggering these automatic sanctions:

- All commercial aviation between the two countries would be halted.
- No passenger could enter the United States until gaining a later visa from a country not on the list.
- No plane could land in the United States with baggage from the listed country unless it had been thoroughly searched in a neutral country.
- No plane could land in the United States if it had landed in the listed country unless it had been thoroughly inspected in a third country.
- All persons, freight or mail passing through the listed country within the last year would be thoroughly searched and inspected before being allowed to enter the United States.
- No export licenses would be allowed for the sale of munitions to any country on the list.
- The sale or transfer of nuclear material or technology to those countries would be prohibited.

IN BONN, MEANTIME, West Germany sent border guards to 13 foreign airports to take over security checks for Germany-bound planes in hopes of preventing terrorist attacks. Government officials would not release the names of the airports involved, but the list was said to include the Spanish holiday island of Majorca, where the Luftansa hijack drama began Oct. 13.

Other airports where German officials thought security to be so lax that special checks were needed were believed to include Barcelona, Spain; Algiers, Algeria; Dakar, Senegal; Bombay, India; Istanbul, Turkey; and Tripoli, Libya.

2-week forecast on weather soon

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI) — It soon will become possible to forecast the weather accurately two weeks in advance, scientists at RCA said Monday.

The scientists said a new generation of satellites they developed would begin to provide the most accurate weather and environmental information ever received from space.

The first two of the eight new satellites RCA is planning to launch are expected to be put in orbit by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1978, they said.

Teamsters turned down by Harper officials

Teamsters Union Local 714 has been spurned again — this time by Harper College officials, who have turned down the Teamsters' five-month-old request to represent the college's six-man public safety department in collective bargaining.

Harper's refusal, expressed in a letter from Board Chairwoman Shirley Munson, "basically comes down to economics," Harper College Pres. Robert E. Lahti said Monday.

Negotiating a contract for six men takes as much time and costs as much money as it would for a larger group, and the proliferation of small unions at the college would not be in the taxpayers' best interests, Lahti said.

HARPER FACULTY members and custodians already are unionized, but are affiliated with AFL-CIO unions. The college's six public safety officers, who serve as law enforcement agents, firefighters and safety inspectors for the Harper campus, approached the Teamsters last spring, but the issue had been dormat until Harper's letter of refusal.

Informed of that refusal Monday, William Hogan Jr., president of Teamsters Local 714, said, "If that's their attitude, they more than likely will wind up with a picket line."

The Teamsters have made little headway in the Northwest suburbs, although the union has spent months trying to gain recognition from the Palatine and Rolling Meadows village boards on behalf of the villages' patrolmen and other employes. Last week, Rolling Meadows firefighters backed out of unionization efforts because of the Teamsters' lack of success.

At Harper, the problems that led public safety officers to try to unionize do not seem "too serious," Lahti said. He cited poor communication with the administration, a desire for a salary review and the need for better radio equipment and better-equipped squad cars as complaints voiced by the security force in a meeting with college officials last week.

Class X bill given top priority that," Stanley said.

The conciliatory message came through strongest on the governor's discussion of the controversial class X legislation, which would create mandatory sentences for certain serious crimes.

"There are those who will not support the legislation because of its name, I believe that name to be important and related to the central purpose of criminal law. But I may be wrong. In any event, let that question be settled, and settled quickly. Veto the name up or down and then let us move on to the other tasks which the people have sent us here to do," Thompson said.

The governor did agree to discuss compromise on other aspects of the sentencing proposals, which essentially call for tough, mandatory prison sentences for certain violent crimes.

Cost of substitute teacher jobless pay could run high

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

Thousands of substitute teachers and other part-time school employes soon could be eligible for unemployment compensation from their Northwest suburban districts at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars a year to local taxpayers.

The workers will be able to collect because the Illinois General Assembly is not likely to have the time to make the unemployment compensation law, designed for private industry, conform to the peculiarities of the public sector.

The results:

- Some substitute teachers and part-time school employes could draw more money from the district by not working than by being employed. Only one week must pass without a substitute teacher being called to work for him or her to file for unemployment compensation.
- Any school employe could attempt to collect unemployment compensation during summer and holiday vacations and cost school districts time and money to contest their claim.

By order of the federal government Illinois legislators have until Nov. 10 to enact a law providing unemployment insurance coverage for all public employes beginning in January. The consequences of noncompliance are severe and include exclusion of Illinois from a program in which the federal government assumes half of the state's expenditures for unemployment benefits.

"Right now it's more important to get the law passed than to take the time to deal with the weaknesses in the eligibility requirements," Tom Ross, administrator for the Bureau of Unemployment Securities, said.

Northwest suburban taxpayers are likely to foot at least a $300,000 annual tab for substitute teachers' unemployment compensation, a survey done for the Northwest Education Cooperative shows. And that study includes only nine of the area's 18 districts.

The money will come either from an additional tax on homeowners or from funds currently allocated for educational programs and staff, school officials say.

UNLESS THE Illinois Legislature makes specific exceptions, any school district employe with earnings of $1,000 in four successive calendar quarters and earnings of at least $250 in two of the quarters will be eligible for unemployment compensation, Ross said.

Only one week need pass without a substitute teacher being called to work for him or her to file for unemployment compensation, he said.

"Is that unemployment or is that the nature of the job?" Stephen Doty, associate executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards asked, in objecting to the provision.

In some instances, part-time employes may qualify for more under unemployment than they ever made from the district, Robert Weber, business manager in High School Dist. 214, said.

"We're not opposed to having the appropriate people covered, but we want to be sure we don't get ripped off by those who shouldn't be covered," he said.

CLAIMS FOR full-time teachers probably will cost Northwest suburban school districts more than $300,000 a year, with payments ranging from a high of $71,000 in Dist. 214 to a low of $6,000 in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, according to the NEC report.

Annual unemployment cost estimates for teachers and substitutes for districts not in NEC are: High School Dist. 207, $108,000; Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96, $20,000; Keeneyville Dist. 20, $7,400; and Elgin Area Unit Dist. 46, $100,000. Estimates for other area districts were not available.

The majority of teachers collecting unemployment benefits will be those who were dismissed because of declining enrollment or fired because of incompetency.

Nothing in the current law, however, specifically forbids teachers from filing for unemployment compensation during summer and holiday vacations and school officials worry whether this would be upheld and what it would cost them in time and money to contest each case.

By acting in haste and not giving the matter sufficient thought, the legislature likely will enact a law that will have "very unintended and undesirable effects which would have to be corrected with subsequent legislation," Arthur Perry, business manager in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, said.

Contributions for	Substitute teachers	Full-time teachers
Palatine Township Dist. 15	$24,250	$35,964
Wheeling Township Dist. 21	$24,000	$29,000
Prospect Heights Dist. 23	$ 7,000	$ 6,000
Arlington Heights Dist. 25	$51,000	$25,000
Schaumburg Township Dist. 54	$50,000	$55,000
Mount Prospect Dist. 57	$ 9,000	$ 8,000
Elk Grove Township Dist. 59	$32,000	$35,000
High School Dist. 211	$38,000	$36,000
High School Dist. 214	$45,000	$71,000
Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization and Northwest Education Cooperative		$ 6,000

The chart estimates some of the school districts belonging to the Northwest Education Cooperative would have borne during 1977 had teachers been eligible for unemployment compensation. Prepared by consulting actuaries, the cost estimates consider only claims which could have been filed by teachers and substitute teachers because of the difficulty in obtaining data on other school employes. River Trails Dist. 26 declined to participate in the study because of the cost involved.

Wis. learns to live with system

"Like anything else that's new, it's going to cost more money and take a lot of time."

This warning on the new unemployment compensation program for public employes comes from a Wisconsin school official who has been living with the program for almost four years.

Abuses are inevitable as the law is not written to meet the special needs of school districts, and officials often must take the time to contest claims, said Art Olson, business manager of the Oak Creek School District south of Milwaukee.

HE CITED A case experienced by a neighboring district where a substitute teacher disconnected his telephone and couldn't be called for work and then filed for unemployment compensation.

In Oak Creek itself, an office worker quit to go to work for a private company, got laid off after four weeks and filed against the district for unemployment although she was offered her old job back, Olson said.

The district contested, but because the woman was earning more money at her new job than her old one she was granted a six-week search period to find new employment and Oak Creek had to pay her unemployment benefits in the interim, he said.

At the end of the six weeks she returned to work for the school district, but three weeks later she was called back to work for the private company and left, Olson said.

Despite occasional "horror stories" such as these, most school employes have not abused their new unemployment compensation coverage, he said.

"We've got some who have taken advantage, but that's always the case," Olson said. "You can't destroy a system that's good for a lot of people because you have some cheaters."

"THE LAW HAS TO be drawn up to guard against abuse," Supt. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling Township Dist. 21 warned. "Everyone has a lawyer who can find loopholes."

If the Illinois legislature approves amendments proposed by State Sen. Phillip Rock, D-Oak Park, school districts would be able to choose between two methods of financing unemployment compensation.

Under the employer contribution plan, they would pay 1.5 per cent into a trust fund of each employe's first $6,000 in wages. Unemployment payments would be drawn from the fund, with the federal government picking up any excess bills.

The alternative would be for school districts to reimburse the state for the amount of money former employes draw in unemployment benefits.

Whichever method districts choose, they'll be locked into it for two years and school officials complain they have little to go on in deciding which route would hurt them least.

"It's a Catch-22 situation," Perry said.

ALREADY STRAPPED for money, Northwest suburban school officials say they can hold up their end of the unemployment compensation plan only if they are allowed to levy a tax to bring in the needed money.

"We get all these mandates from the government and there's no provision for us to fund them without taking money away from our primary function — education," Dist. 214's Weber said. "If we're going to be forced into this we ought to be able to tax whatever is necessary to pay for it."

A measure proposed by the IASB would allow school districts to levy a tax sufficient to pay unemployment compensation premiums without getting voter approval in a referendum.

If the legislature fails to adopt this measure, school districts will end up laying off teachers or reducing academic programs to pay for unemployment compensation, Doty said.

"There's only a certain amount of money available and this is mandatory," he said. "We have to get to a point where we can live within a budget."

BUT CURTIS PLOTT, executive director of the Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers' union said he does not believe the situation is as bad as the IASB is making it out to be.

"Tell me if a $50,000 or $100,000 expense is going to bankrupt a district," he said. "Sure it's going to increase the financial burden, but chaos will not in effect follow."

Viet vets not appreciated: Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commemorating the nation's war dead at Arlington Cemetery, President Carter said Monday it is unfair that his son and others in the Vietnam era were "scorned" while he was welcomed as "something of a hero" of Korea and World War II.

In a Veterans Day address at the sunbathed, flag-draped Arlington Amphitheatre, the President said the nation owes Vietnam veterans "a debt of gratitude" that has not been expressed because the war was unpopular.

He noted that he and earlier members of his family had been appreciated.

"I REPRESENT the kind of family that is close to all your hearts," he said.

"About 140 years after my own family came to this country, the first James Carter in our family who lived in Georgia fought in the Revolutionary War. My great-grandparents participated in the War Between the States.

"My own father was . . . first lieutenant in the First World War. I wore the uniform of our country during the Second World War and the Korean War."

while Carter was completing a crash course at the Naval Academy when World War II was ending, he noted he was in uniform but not in combat duty for both that fight and the Korean War.

"ALTHOUGH I came back from the wars as something of a hero — although I was not a hero — my son came back unappreciated, sometimes scorned by his peer group who did not join in the conflict," Carter said.

He referred to Jack, who served in the Navy and was given a general — less than honorable — discharge for smoking marijuana.

"I think there is a special debt of gratitude on the part of American people to those young men and women who served in Vietnam because they have not been appreciated enough," Carter said.

"It is difficult enough to fight in a war that is popular with our people because of a sense of patriotism . . . dedication . . . but to fight in a self-sacrificial way in Vietnam . . . is an extremely difficult thing."

THE PRESIDENT, his wife and daughter Amy, rode in a long processional motorcade that wound through the cemetery amid rows of white markers of the war dead.

Carter placed a red, white and blue wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier as taps played and the family carried flags back to the White House.

PRESIDENT CARTER waves miniature American Flag as he attends a Veterans Day ceremony in Arlington National Cemetery Monday. He said the nation owes Vietnam veterans a "special debt of gratitude" because of the scorn heaped upon them by opponents of the war.

The President spent the rest of the holiday relaxing in preparation for a busy Tuesday, whic includes a meeting with Democratic congressional leaders and a session with Prince Saud, the Saudi Arabian foreign minister.

Vets protest, celebrate on last of October holiday

Many Illinois veterans celebrated a last, confusing split Veterans Day Monday while some others used the occasion to protest the way the government and private industry treat them.

Since 1968, federal institutions and some banks have followed the federal law, which makes Veterans Day the fourth Monday in October, guaranteeing a three-day holiday.

But the Illinois Legislature bowed to heavy pressure from veterans groups to keep the state observance on the traditional Nov. 11. Thus, state offices and other institutions close on that date.

Congress has changed the law, effective next year, to return the federal observance to Nov. 11.

While some celebrated the day, 10 members of the Vietnam Veterans against the war burned their discharge papers at the eternal flame in the Daley Plaza to protest what they called shabby treatment of Vietnam era vets.

Coordinator Ed Damato said benefits for veterans have been severely cut back in recent years while unemployment among those who served in Vietnam has soared.

The government, he said, has a "use once and throw away attitude" toward Vietnam veterans.

Bruce Barnett, 33, a railroad worker, said 18.1 per cent of veterans between the ages of 20 and 24 are jobless.

"We fought for the rich class in Vietnam and they used us and threw us away," Barnett said.

New Miner plan a good solution

Residents of the area around Miner Junior High School who opposed a plan to lease the school to Roosevelt University have won. Roosevelt will not rent that building.

A new, fascinating plan has been proposed for the building instead. Officials of Aptakisic School Dist. 102 in Vernon Township have asked whether they can lease between 10 and 18 classrooms at Miner for their junior high school students.

The plan sounds like a good one. And so does the suggestion from Roosevelt officials that they rent part of North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., for classrooms, rather than Miner.

Officials of the Aptakisic school district have hit on an innovative way to cope with increasing enrollment while building a new school to accommodate their growth. They would bus about 150 sixth, seventh and eighth graders the eight miles to Miner rather than put their own school on double shift.

The plan provides an interesting contrast between Arlington Heights, where enrollment growth has halted and Aptakisic, where schools are coping with exactly the same growth problems which plagued Dist. 25 just a few years ago.

Such a lease arrangement should help Dist. 25 while providing a good tenant for Miner — a tenant that would not disturb the community.

At the same time, it is good news that Roosevelt is not going to abandon all hope of leasing classroom space in Arlington Heights. If the university can find suitable space at North or some other school, that will also benefit the community.

The hassles surrounding Miner have been hard on everyone — on residents of the Miner area who have felt abused by school officials and on school officials who felt community members misunderstood their motives.

Now that a satisfactory outcome seems likely, it's time for both sides to settle down so whatever group the future tenant of Miner is, they will feel welcome.

A commuter's heroics

Every day thousands of suburban commuters, wearing the two and three piece "uniforms' of business and clutching briefcases, idle away time at the train stations waiting to go to Chicago.

Who knows how many of those ordinary people harbor the souls of heroes?

Last week Gerry Pape of Palatine stepped out of the crowd of anonymous commuters and became a hero.

It was all over in a flash. A woman, running to catch the train, tripped and fell on the tracks as the engine approached. As she struggled and as the train engineer, helpless to stop his vehicle, watched in horror, Pape stepped forward, reached out and pulled the woman to safety.

The woman was later identified as Rosie Karmik. And Pape, to his amazement, found that fellow commuters, the train crew and even his boss made a big deal of his action.

All Pape can say is "I did what had to be done." And that's true. Who knows how many of us might have been the hero if we had been in his place.

But that doesn't minimize Pape's heroism. It makes it better. It proves you don't have to be extraordinary to save a human life — just quick to react and brave.

We're proud of Gerry Pape.

Tyranny's roots flourish where lawlessness lives

Paul Greenberg

The arrest of Indira Gandhi in India had some political overtones that should not give even her severest critics comfort. The atmosphere surrounding her arrest smacks too much of just the sort of political law she used when in power.

One's forebodings about the nature of Mrs. Gandhi's arrest are only strenthened by a comment from Charan Singh, the new home minister: "The wrongs she committed and the indignities she heaped on the nation — the constitution perverted, the fundamental freedoms forfeited, the press muzzled, the judiciary robbed of its independence — called for a trial on the Nuremberg model . . ."

The Nuremberg model? That is just the model to avoid in a society of law. It is the model of the extraordinary, ex-post-facto, victor's law that Indira Gandhi specialized in as Empress of India.

MINISTER SINGH reminds one of Will Roper in Robert Bolt's beautiful play about Sir Thomas More, "A Man for All Seasons." In one scene young Roper importunes Sir Thomas to arrest an informer on all but legal grounds. And when Sir Thomas refuses, not being able to justify the arrest by law, Master Roper in his righteousness grows angry:

Roper: So now you'd give the Devil benefit of law?

More: Yes, what would you do? Cut a great road through the law to get after the Devil?

Roper: I'd cut down every law in England to do that!

More: Oh? And when the last law was down, and the Devil turned round on you — where would you hide, Roper, the laws all being flat? . . . Yes, I'd give the Devil benefit of law, for my own safety's sake!

AFTER HIS FERVID recital of Indira Gandhi's political offenses, Minister Singh concluded that his government would rest "content with a trial for offenses under the ordinary law of the land." If so, that is a just — and prudent — decision. If Mrs. Gandhi is accused of a crime ordinarily recognized, she should be brought to justice. But extraordinary law has a way of being turned against those who would use it against others. As the plight of Mrs. Gandhi now illustrates.

Even those who cheered Indira Gandhi's defeat only a few months ago as a resurgence of democrary and law in India begin to have their doubts. The Janata Party that swept aside her dictatorial rule has held onto some of her dictatorial edicts, and made use of them. Rather than free the country's constitution of Indira Gandhi's tacked-on amendments, her successors used its most notorious to call new elections out in the states and so sweep her followers out of offices to which they had been duly elected.

Mrs. Gandhi's arrest may have been the most newsworthy in India of late, but other members of her government have been charged, too. Including her minister of law, her minister of petroleum and her minister of commerce. Perhaps they should have been, but the extent of the dragnet arouses suspicion.

To quote Ved Mehta, the blind writer who is among the most farseeing observers of Indian affairs: "Although all the suspects are free pending trial, their arrests were in defiance of the spirit of the government's own inquiries, not to mention its leaders' witness that jail in India confers martyrdom and thereby becomes a route to high public office.

GEORGE FERNANDES, who stood for Parliament from jail and won, and is now Minister of Industry in the Janata government, would have been convicted of criminal charges, such as using violence to overthrow the Emergency government, if, after Mrs. Gandhi's fall, the Janata government had not summarily dismissed all charges against him. Who can say how the wheel of political fortune will turn?"

The enemy of freedom in India is not Indira Gandhi and her gang so much as the lawlessness she brought to her country. To use it against her only implants deeper the tyranny she brought to India, no matter who the immediate victim.

INDIRA GANDHI

We ask government to provide hope

by ANTHONY RIPLEY

We are like children, so often, lost along the way, unable to tell just what it is we want our government to do for us, unsure of how to measure when it has gone too far and needs restraint, unable to fit our sense of right and wrong against some set pattern.

Our lives need benchmarks, points of reference by which to measure what is happening to us. Without them, we cannot make sound judgments, find ourselves adrift. So we do the best we can in the immediate situation. Pehaps that's called situational ethics. Patchwork replaces principle.

With our government it is the same.

WE HAVE BEEN IN a period of political patchwork for many years — making our national and international policies fit the particular pressure of the particular moment. Perhaps that's better called pragmatism.

President Carter, with a deep Biblical background, seemed to hold the promise of such guidelines. But he has now nestled down among the Washington pragmatists and the guidelines and principles are melting here and there.

"What do you mean?" snaps an angry politician. "What's this about guidelines? What is it you want me to do?"

We cannot give him a straight answer for there is no one thing. So we struggle to give him a guideline:

"WE THINK AMERICAN society must be kept free enough from government control and from excess private power so that those men and women who want to make something out of their lives are able to do so."

We want people to have those chances. That is the important point. That is what our whole political and economic system should be about.

That is what we want to leave for our children and to give to people all over the world. We want to give them the chance.

We all instinctively realize it. We cheer the politicians who promise to go to Washington in our name and clear out the government's clutter of paperwork and bureaucrats that weigh us down. And in business we cheer the Davids who topple Goliaths.

WE DO IT BECAUSE we feel the need for room to breathe, room to take chances, room to risk it all and perhaps fail.

But the politicians fall prey to a loss of vision when they spend time in Washington. The system of passing bills, of reviewing legislation, tends to narrow their focus constantly. From the President down, they concentrate on an issue at a time, seeing the trees one at a time and forgetting the blazing forest.

So it is up to us who treasure the American idea of individualism to pull them back.

We must say, "I don't care what bill you've passed this session, Mr. Politician, or what dam they're going to build for us or what highway. I want to know what you've done to keep the country free for my children's chances and mine. What have you done for hope?

"I'M SICK AND TIRED of hearing what you've done to control, to restrict, to deny, to punish. I want to know what you've done to encourage, to open, to lift, to create.

"We want this society open to possibilities, not closed to risk."

We must constantly remind them. They go to Washington and they forget.

Don't limit CB antenna

Recently there has been much publicity regarding Citizens Band or Personal Radio and its use. The FCC has very specific and stringent rules regulating its use and accompanying structures, namely antennas.

The antennas seem to be the question at hand in that the City of Des Plaines wants to pass an ordinance whereby all antennas (i.e. closed circuit, cable, C.B., ham and television) would be relegated to a maximum height of thirty-five feet. At this time no ordinance exists, but rather a building code is being made to carry the burden of a non-existent ordinance. There is undoubtedly some question as to the legality of this action, but such is not the purpose of this letter. If such action were to be taken and all antennas were lowered to the thirty-five foot limit, television reception would be antagonized by antenna radiation. This means that television viewing would be impossible if a C.B.er in your area was operating Sight pollution is an excuse being used by some of the City Committee members for the proposed ordinance. What exactly is Sight Pollution? Could it be the billboards and neon signs that assault us from every angle while traveling through downtown Des Plaines? Could sight pollution be defined as the eye-sore designated a parking facility erected in the center of our town? Is sight pollution a catch-all phrase for any structure that a few city councilmen deems unsightly or is the real issue a simple case of selective law enforcement?

The danger involved in lowering antennas is grave. Guy wires strung through a back yard pose not only an imminent hazard, but sight pollution of the greatest magnitude. In legal terms, the antennas would create an "attractive nuisance", i.e. children would find them fun to climb, or stumble over wires draped in the yards. On the other hand there has not been a single incidence of a child climbing a roof in order to climb an antenna pole.

For those few CBers who cause problems, we apologize. One day those of you who have taken the time to read this article may find that a "good buddy" helped you when you needed help the most. It is our sincere desire to cultivate a more informed city council and help our neighbors to better understand the basics of citizens band radio.

Communications is in its infancy — there are always problems in growing up.

Kenneth Steigerwald
Des Plaines

'Stop growth'

You can't put 10 pounds in a five pound bag. Apparently the "powers that be" in Schaumburg Township don't know that. They're trying for 20 and the bag is about to burst. There are too many people in Schaumburg Township, that is the village of Hoffman Estates, and Schaumburg — way too many NOW! And yet residents who live here can see that every square foot of unused land is being built on, ticky tacky springing up like mushrooms everywhere you look.

I have heard that by the end of 1979 at least 7,000 more poor souls are going to move into Schaumburg Township. That will be fine until these people have to go some place. They will have to use their cars because there is no other form of transportation. They will bring many many of them along when they move here thus adding to an already absurd, impossible, exasperating traffic problem the likes of which I have never seen this side of the San Diego freeway. It took me 25 minutes to drive a mile and a half from my house today, and that was not even during the rush hour. Everywhere you go you have to stand in line; banks are impossibly crowded; stores the same. A simple thing like mailing a letter takes military strategy planned out ahead of time. Even barber shops require you to make an appointment they are so crowded.

The traffic is so bad it is becoming a life-and-death struggle just to get on Roselle Road. The exasperation that motorists suffer here makes the situation much more dangerous because they lose patience and take chances they would never dream of in order to avoid waiting 15 or 20 minutes to get on a road. I wish I had the gasoline burned by cars idling at the intersection of Higgins and Roselle. We could solve the energy crises.

Please, Mayor Hayter and Mayor Kessell, have a heart. For Pete's sake try to do something to slow down the growth rate here until the facilities catch up with the population. We're already at the saturation point and anyone can see that it's an intolerable situation just by driving down the road. That five pound bag is splitting at the seams now. Don't try to stuff anymore in it unless you can make it bigger.

Technology for better world here but new values needed: Cousteau

by JACQUES COUSTEAU

Twenty years ago I wanted to focus my attention permanently on the oceans. I was naively convinced that the oceans were teeming with life, rich in resources of all sorts. During long crossings on the Indian Ocean or the Atlantic, I spent many hours day and night looking through the Calypso's underwater observation chamber dreaming of Captain Nemo in the Nautilus.

But soon I had to face the evidence: the blue waters of the open ocean were mostly desert. Like the deserts on land, they were alive. But the live ingredient, plankton, like haze, was barely visible and very thinly spread.

Then occasionally the sea churned into a feast at night. Close to shore, around reefs and wrecks, fish would gather in spectacular displays of beauty. Years of diving revealed the same situation at the ocean bottom, where endless deserts are spotted with rare but exuberant oases.

Jacques Cousteau

DISCOVERING THESE oases was my first step toward understanding that the ocean is in fact a very small world. Resources are at least as limited as those on the dry land; the ocean is extremely fragile and at our mercy.

From the sea, I also learned of the fragility of man, especially in the face of catastrophe. Constant changes, slow or abrupt, are likely to counter or destroy human projects when men are too proud to admit the probability of these changes.

HOW CAN WE believe what we are told: that the nuclear enterprise, military or peaceful, could safely survive wars, revolutions, natural catastrophes, when the by-products are lethal for millions of years? When drums containing nuclear wastes are dumped in the sea with the blessing of governments, and already are gaping open, releasing their eternal poison in the ocean? When more than 200 tons of uranium have vanished during a ship transfer? When more than 2,000 pounds of enriched nuclear uranium and plutonium cannot be accounted for in the United States alone?

The sea has become the universal sewer where all pollutants end up and hide out as rainfalls wash the air on the continent.

OUR WORLD IS dangerously sick, but we have all the technical know-how to cure it. We know how to purify gases at the source and liquid effluents of cities and factories. We know how to recycle most raw materials and how to replace overfishing by aquaculture. We can protect wildlife and rare plants.

We know how to spread communication faster for mass media and how to use publicity techniques for good purposes. In other words, we have the technology to stop immediately and even to reverse these damages.

But these answers are on the technological level only. Much more important, and more complicated, are the economic and political levels. Here, the fight for survival calls for individual education, self-service, complete sociological and political revolution.

The fight for survival also calls for a switch without delay from our concept of expansion in quantity to the concept of expansion in quality.

It calls for a stable society of tomorrow where science and the arts would grow without necessarily expanding the economy, without necessarily using more energy or more material.

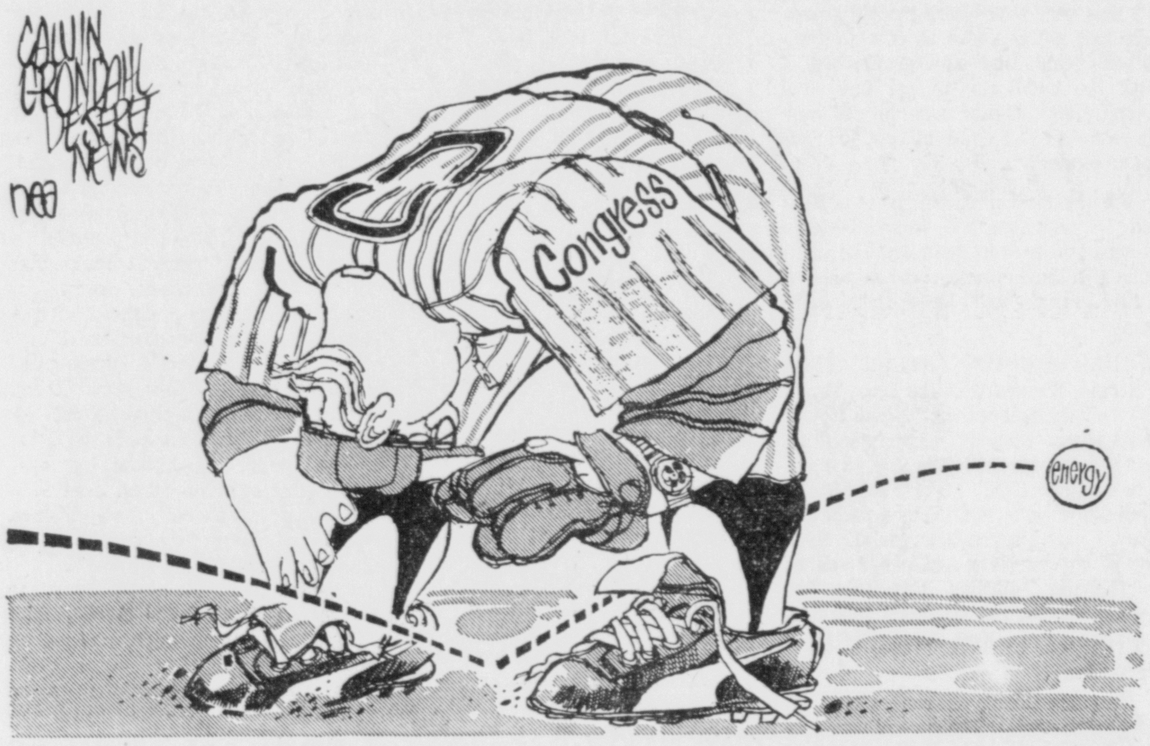

I WOULD LIKE to give you an example of "what might have been" in such a different society.

Three years ago, the Calypso was one of four ships participating in an enormous and costly survey to determine the feasibility of a natural gas pipeline to extend from Tunisia across the sea to Sicily and on to Italy. Diving in saucers, we reached bottom at 800 feet. There, by pure chance, in the middle of the Mediterranean, we fell upon the splendid, well preserved wreck of a Phoenician war ship, dating at least four or five centuries B.C. Several merchant vessels from antiquity have been found — but never a war ship.

In the stable society of tomorrow, the pipeline would certainly have been abandoned to pursue our understanding of that ancient civilization. But in our industrialized society of today, it was the fantastic archaeological find that was abandoned in order to finish the survey so more gas could be burned in Sicily. So let us all become involved, and begin to turn to the civilization of tomorrow.

Pride will prompt canal's defense

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is a story probably apocryphal, that someone asked Albert Einstein after the atomic bomb was developed what the principal weapon of the next war would be.

The great man replied that he did not know about the next war, but he was willing to predict what armies would use in the war after that: "bows and arrows."

It may be worth remembering in the current controversy over the Panama Canal that we still are talking about "the next war" — the nuclear holocaust.

SO IF, AS OUR military men have convinced us, the only way we can assure our national security is to spend billions of dollars on nuclear missiles, what part will the Panama Canal play in our survival?

How does the ability to move ships between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans relate to a military situation in which our potential enemies are capable of incinerating our cities and poisoning our countryside with weapons from the air?

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER probably has the answer. Goldwater says public opposition to the canal treaties is based on the same kind of strong personal feeling that people have about the flag — an emotional response based on attitudes deeply implanted in childhood.

So it probably does little good for supporters of the canal treaties to argue that we don't need it for national defense. To folks who were taught in grade school that the Panama Canal is "ours," the question simply is whether we should "give away" one of America's proudest possessions.

He had an example of that kind of argument in the controversy over the Vietnam War.

DURING THE EARLY years of the antiwar movement, the argument was made that the United States had become an aggressor, injecting itself into a civil war. That was a direct contradiction of the official explanation that we were in Vietnam to defend a free people against Communist invasion.

Public opinion turned against the war, but it probably was the failure to get a quick victory along with the cost, in dollars and blood, that caused the shift. The continuing hostility to amnesty for those who resisted military service during that conflict is just one indicator that Americans did not accept the argument that their country was doing wrong in Vietnam.

It may be that nothing short of serious violence in Panama will change the minds of Americans who object to giving up control of the canal. Their first reaction will be to defend what is ours, but if the price gets too high, as it did in Vietnam, pragmatism may do what persuasion could not.

Winkler – he's cool even without Fonz

Henry Winkler was charming his way through Chicago Monday when he admitted he hasn't decided whether he'll return to ABC's "Happy Days" for a sixth season as the Fonz.

"I love the Fonz, he is fun to play and he gives me the opportunity to do things that I can't do as Henry Winkler," he said.

"But I've been doing the Fonz for five years and there's just so much that I can do with one character," Winkler said. "I never want to get to the point where someone will get tired of me and tune me out. I want to get out before that."

The 32-year-old Winkler has been in Chicago since Sunday night to talk about and host a sneak preview of his new film, "Heroes," which also stars Sally Field.

HIS TELEVISION appearances included WGN's "Phil Donahue" show and "A.M. Chicago," along with a press conference Monday night. During his trip he asked the press to restrain from questions about his "Happy Days" role in an ongoing attempt to separate his own identity with that of the Fonz.

"The Fonz gave me the opportunity to do this movie, but I have to establish my identity as my own," he said. "I need to grow and so that's why I have asked for the opportunity to spread my wings."

Winkler said he is not afraid of being typecast because he has sought and has been given the chance to play the part of a Vietnam veteran in "Heroes" and a man who strives for stardom and becomes a wrestler in another upcoming feature film.

Winkler, who leaves this morning for New York, came across as a straight forward, well-adjusted, bright, likable actor who wears his success with style.

He said he believes his responsibility to himself is to grow as an actor and that his reponsibility to his audience is to give the best performance he can in any role he takes.

"THE FACT that people like what I do thrills me to no end," Winkler said, but he obviously is anxious to gain the respect of his admirers for more than just his Fonzie role.

"The show ("Happy Days") has been successful mainly because we have the same acting ensemble we started out with five years ago when they were ready to take us off the air. Now, we share first place in the ratings every week with 'Laverne and Shirley,' " he said.

The Yale theater graduate probably answered every question in the book during his brief Chicago stay. Yes, he's setting up a Fonzie fan club, mainly a practical and efficient vehicle for responding to fan mail, the proceeds of which will go to charity.

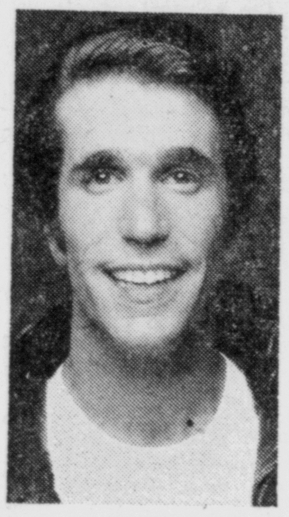

Yes, he wants to marry someday and have children, but the only relationship he has time for now is a very sensitive one with a mysterious red-haired woman he met a year ago in a clothes shop.

Yes, he finally has bought a house and moved out of his one-bedroom apartment, and he enjoys gardening, reading and horseback riding.

BUT, THE BIG question, for faithful, affectionate fans and ABC, continues to go unanswered for now. Will Winkler shed his Fonzie role for good next season in an attempt to devote all of his time and energy to bigger and better things?

TV NOTES:

Cumulative ratings so far in October for the nightly news race between Chicago's three network-owned stations show WLS-TV, Channel 7 at least three ratings points ahead of Channel 2 at 6 p.m., putting

HENRY WINKLER

Channel 5 in third place. Channel 7 also is leading by as many as five ratings points at 10 p.m., with Channel 2 second and Channel 5 third.

The ratings margins seem wider than in May during another annual A.C. Nielsen book period, but Nielsen will confirm the final ratings figures after the period is over next week. News show performand is important because prospective advertisers buy air time based on the Nielsen ratings.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• Elinor Donahue returns to television family life tonight in NBC's "Mulligan's Stew" at 8 p.m. on Channel 5. It's been 17 years since she starred as the older sister, Betty Anderson, in "Father Knows Best" of the 1950s. Few know that part of that time she was married and pregnant with her first son, by her first husband.

Since then, she has remarried, raised four sons, carried a semiregular role on "The Odd Couple" and even participated in a recent "Father Knows Best Reunion." Although she has tentative plans to appear in a "Father Knows Best" Christmas reunion, a weekly series of her own is "most welcome," she said.

"I love the work and I think we can get into issues now that we couldn't years ago," she said, noting the producer of the show, Joanna Lee, has tactfully and meaningfully dealt with subjects such as child abuse and teen-age pregnancy in several recent made-for-TV movies.

The 40-year-old actress is the television wife of the winsome Larry Pressman who heads a family of seven children, four of whom they inherited after the death of relatives. The middle class family of three boys, three girls and a newly adopted Vietnamese orphan lives in a snug California home.

It is the sixth family drama to premiere this season and probably will prove to be one of television's better family efforts although the Mulligans appear to be too polished and too perfect a family at times.

• Marina Oswald Porter is interviewed live on ABC's "Good Morning, America" today and Wednesday at 7 a.m. on Channel 7.

• Songs and comedy written about and in Chicago are performed on "Words and Music Made in Chicago" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 11, followed at 9 p.m. by "Donnie, the The Cost of Caring," a sobering look at a 3-year-old boy who has spent his life in the intensive care unit of Chicago's Children's Memorial Hospital because of a birth defect.

Sergio Mendes and band keep Brazil beat going

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sergio Mendes puffed an eight-inch cigar, crossed his legs and admitted that he "feels lousy" on some of the nights he performs.

A devilish laugh quickly followed the complaint and the musician's bearded face broke into a huge grin.

"Some nights feels lousy, some nights feels great. It all depends," Mendes said, his voice peppered with a Latin accent. "Most of the time, 99 per cent, it feels great."

Mendes and the original Brazil '66 opened at Carnegie Hall 15 years ago and started a musical heat wave to which Americans still sizzle.

HIS BRAND of the Brazilian beat, the Bossa Nova, gave a new rhythm and beat to the popular songs "The Look of Love," "Fool on the Hill" and "Scarborough Fair" to net Mendes a cache of gold records.

But today, Mendes is starting all over again. He returned to Carnegie Hall recently to introduce the "new" Brazil '77.

"I'm playing with a brand new set of cards," the Rio-born pianist said. "I was very bored with the old group. We had nothing else to give to each other. Stagnating is a good word. I felt the only way to get any new blood, new vitality was to get new personalities. I kind of started all over again."

For the most part, the sound of Brazil '77 remains the same. Female voices still predominate. But the addition of a third female vocal provides a fuller range and texture to most songs.

THE GROUP'S LATEST album "Sergio Mendes and the New Brazil '77" subtly escapes the "Bossa Nova" stereotype. Mendes' experimentation with new material like Stevie Wonder's "Love City," "The Real Thing" and Chicago's "If You Leave Me Now" has proven successful. However, concertgoers are never robbed of hearing old-time favorites. The group opened the Carnegie Hall concert with "Mas Que Nada," Mendes' first hit.

"We are taking chances with a lot of new material. The new album only has one song anyone has ever heard before," Mendes said.

"I'd rather not be framed into anything. What makes me happy is that I'm in the jazz charts, the R&B charts, the disco charts and the easy listening charts," he said.

SERGIO MENDES

After logging thousands of miles across four continents and playing countless engagefents, the veteran musician still finds difficulty in "pacing" a concert performance.

"I NEVER KNOW how I'm going to sequence a show. What do I open with? Where do I put this song . . . that really freaks me out because I never know," Mendes said.

Mendes said he usually makes up his mind at the last minute."

"I make about 100 lists, then at the last minute I burn them all. Interesting enough, there is no formula. But some nights there is a certain type of pacing where people grow closer with you if you follow that pace. But I have never been able to touch on that," he said.

Mendes' personal taste in music spans the entire spectrum from Stravinsky to Chick Corea to disco and back again to Ravel. His music is a product of all he has ever heard — "consciously or subconsciously" — he said.

DAVE MAJORS and the Minors will appear in a benefit concert sponsored by the Elgin Cosmopolitan Club Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Embers Restaurant, on Ill. Rte. 20, five miles east of Elgin. Proceeds will go to organizations such as American Diabetes, and Easter Seals. For tickets contact Del Oberst, 359-4900.

WITH A SOFT neckline bow, the jumper makes a repeat appearance for fall and winter fashions. The sundress look of summer continues with a cold weather addition of zippered boots.

KEEP WARM this winter in a wrap-around jumper and snuggly turtleneck. Patch pockets, gold chains and boots add a fashionable accent to this simple jumper in a washable knit fabric.

Jumpers

Adaptability makes them a must for every wardrobe

by JOYCE LOFSTROM

It's back to feminity this fall with the appearance of the peasant look jumper. Gone is the simple style of the straight cut jumper as soft lines, harvest colors and lightweight fabrics dominate today's jumper scene.

"The jumper is really a continuation of the sundress," says Marilyn Darby, one of the owners of By George, a his and hers clothing store in Mount Prospect. Hoping to continue the popularity of sundress design, manufacturers carried the style into this fall's fashion lineup.

True, the skirt and shawl or vested suit is the newest addition to fashion this year. But designers and women's wear buyers agree the jumper style is classic.

"The jumper is definitely in and a beneficial addition to any wardrobe," says designer Marsha Anderle of Caron Inc., a manufacturer of women's clothing. "You can wear something under it now or wear it alone for spring."

THE JUMPER styles vary from simple to elaborate, a feature which gives it a "something for everyone" quality.

A more casual dresser might enjoy the "floats," a scooped neck jumper of full cut design and a single front and back seam.

With variations on a theme, the basic float style gives way to a flowing but not as full cut jumper. Look for additions such as satin or floral trim, quilted yokes, side or crisscross ties, soft gathers, lace-up bodice or tie-at-the-shoulder straps.

"I call it the Cinderella look," says Laurie Kurowski, assistant buyer of women's wear at Spiegler's, Des Plaines. Tiers of ruffles separated by satin ribbon or wide trims, a yoke with eyelet or applique insets or a single flounce around the bottom add yet another dimension for a gypsy look jumper.

The most popular fabric for the winterized sundress is suede cloth or Super-Suede, a lighter weight and less expensive material than Ultra Suede. Warm shades of cranberry, rust and brown accent the velvety and slightly nappy appearance of the suede cloth, especially in styles with added lace and trim. Simple styles, such as the floats or the little girl look, require simple fabrics such as corduroy with a plaid bib, wools or knits.

WHEN IT COMES to accessories, the accent is on softness with penny loafers and knee socks — memories of the past. "The soft fabrics go with a bulky sweater," Mrs. Anderle says. And layering is what jumpers are all about with the cowl turtleneck the most desired complement for winter warmth and comfort.

If it's elegance you need, leave the sweater at home, layer over with a soft shawl and slip into a pair of open-toed sandals. Too cold for just a shawl? Choose a satiny or silky tie blouse to add that touch of class to the versatile jumper.

Adaptability is probably the jumper's biggest asset, especially for the working woman. With the reappearance of the cowl, last year's sweaters can complete this year's look. For work or a casual dinner, add a pair of boots and several strands of chains.

Every shopper knows the feeling of frustration when the outfit spotted last week is gone. But look around for jumpers this year because similar styles and prices appear in area stores. Most jumpers range in price from $24 to $46 depending on fabric and trim. A basic design in wool, knit or Super-Suede can be found for about $25 to $30 and is hand washable. If it's ruffles and lace, be prepared to spend more money on the jumper and with some styles, on cleaning bills. Mail order department stores offer lower prices, about $17 to $25, but with a smaller selection in fabrics and styles.

With the first frost already past, the lace-up sandals and hooded jersey tops now are tucked away waiting for the next signs of summer. But the jumper, complete with winter accessories, brings a touch of summer to fashions for the Chicago-style winter ahead.

Top off your fall look with warm, weather-wise sweaters. From the classical V to the shawl-collared sweater jacket, The Man's Shop has the sweater for you. There's nothing more versatile and practical than the right sweater complement.

DECORATIVE DENIM belt is made by using machine stitching for the colorful motifs and Fuse 'n Fold plus fusible web to stiffen and join the denim sections.

Easy-to-make denim belt sparks wardrobe

by JOANNE SCHREIBER

Denim still is the darling of high-schoolers everywhere and is available by the yard to stitch into all sorts of garments and accessories. One of the most useful wardrobe items is a denim belt, to wear with jeans and slacks, skirts and jumpers.

Here is an embroidered denim belt, which may be worn either by boys or girls. It's fast and easy to make, thanks to a new interfacing product which stiffens and folds the denim, to create a durable belt without sewing.

To make this belt, cut two strips of denim to your waist measure plus six inches, and two and one-half inches wide. Set your sewing machine for a wide zigzag stitch.

With chalk, mark stitching guidelines down the length of one denim strip, starting one-half inch in from raw edges. Run zigzag stitching down side and center guidelines, using yellow thread for the two outside strips and red for the center. Change to green thread and set your sewing machine for a decorative stitch. Run two rows of decorative embroidery between the rows of zigzag stitching.

CUT FUSE'N FOLD, Pellon's nonwoven fusible interfacing with built-in fold lines, into lengths to match the denim strips. Using a pressing cloth, fuse the interfacing to the wrong side of each strip. Fold raw edges of fabric in along slotted fold lines. Shape and fold belt end to a point.

Now cut a strip of fusible web to the length and folded width of the denim belt sections. Sandwich the web between the denim sections, and fuse sections together, using a steam iron and press cloth. Sew a buckle to the squared end of the belt.

New fusible interfacing products are wonderful timesavers, enabling you to make items such as this belt far more quickly than by conventional sewing methods. You can make a matching bag, using the Fuse'n Fold to shape the straps, and a stiffer fusible interfacing to add body to the bag itself. Make matching decorative stitching on bag flap and straps.

Fashion designer looks ahead

Charles Suppon: life on the run

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Come 1984, they're going to tear that envelope and announce, "And the winner is Charles Suppon!"

Then Suppon, who will still be short, dark, perhaps a bit paunchy, will pick up his Tony or Academy Award. For directing.

Well, if he doesn't get an award, at least that's what he'll be aiming for at 35, when he's earning his living as a director, not a fashion designer.

"I always intended to go into theater and films, but it was difficult enough to leave Collinsville, Ill., to be a fashion designer in New York. So you just didn't go and be a movie star," he says, at a clip stenographers' nightmares are made of.

"But I knew I could work in fashion and make it fall together, and I've always seen myself in the theater when I'm 35."

AFTER GRADUATING from the Art Institute of Chicago, he went to work for Calvin Klein for six years and learned how crucial detail is to a big-time designer.

You need pencils with your name on them, a classy showroom at 550 Seventh Avenue ("All the top designers are in this building"). When you open your first collection as Charles Suppon for Intre-Sport for all '77, you do it not with a rack of clothes but with 20 models, each fitted exactly beforehand and told whether to unbutton a jacket or dangle a glove in her hand on the runway.

These things pay off. Of course, the clothes have to have something going for them and the people who decide these matters decided Suppon's drawstring hemmed coats, mohair sweatshirts and nutria-lined poplin coats worn under nutria-lined vests ("The only thing chicer than one fur is two") did. Have something going for them.

"I was hoping to be nominated my first year for a Coty Award," he says," and I have been."

SO WHY should Suppon, who likes to shoot rapids and drive cars fast, who in high school once put go-go dancers on the church altar as part of a jazz service — why should he think twice about directing, say Jane Fonda or Elizabeth Taylor, in a movie when he's 35 and never directed anybody before?

Excitement, after all, is what he's after. "I like people and things to be very much alive and there's something about people in the theater that excites me very much. Even if they're phony, it's in an exciting, positive way.

Too many people on Seventh Avenue, if they're phony, it's a blase kind of attitude. 'Yes, we've been to that club and it's running down.' That kind of attitude."

For all of it, there's no brashness or arrogance about the man who never played with dolls but whose teddy bear wore custommade clothes. "My mother is a seamstress and I think she was part of what encouraged me in fashion," he says.

He gets his strength from her, too. "It wasn't easy bringing me up," he says, laughing. "I was always wanting to do more things and she knew from the beginning I wasn't going to stay in Collinsville. My father drank a lot and it would have helped to have me around as a kind of crutch, so I think it was inredible that she let me loose. We're still incredibly close, but there are no strings."

Mrs. Suppon probably knew there's no holding her son with strings. He'd burn right through them.

CHARLES SUPPON'S white on white, all-cotton outfit is part of his holiday collection. Blouse and skirt are percale and the pineapple motif overskirt lace.

Take care

Epoxy and other products make home appliance repairs a cinch for many people, but there are hidden dangers.

Extension safety specialist Rollin D. Schnieder of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln urges home handymen and women to read all directions carefully before using any product.

He said dust from sanding epoxy adhesives can cause skin or lung problems. So can fiberglass. Solvents such as Benzene, Toluene and Xylene can cause dermatitis if splashed on the skin. Vaporizing liquids, varnish removers and tile glues are highly flammable, Schnieder said, but nonflammable varieties of tile glue and cement sealers are now available.

Plain and fancy outfits all in style this season

Harry Juster

Look smart

Going plain and fancy seems to be popular method of putting together sport outfits this season. For example, one way to do it is to pick a pair of colorful slacks such as those by Sansabelt in a gray, navy and red plaid and top them with a solid gray turtleneck.

Another way is to reverse the solid and patterned garments. For instance, wearing a casual duo consisting of tan corduroy slacks with front and rear patch pockets and partially elasticized waistband, set off with a bold, block plaid shirt.

One advantage of taking this approach is that you can do it practically any way you like.

Dear Mr. Juster: Please help three girls in a quandry. Our boss is being transferred and as a going-away gift we decided on a belt with initialed buckle. Helen says the last initial should be used, but Dorothy and I think it's the first one. Who is right? — J.J.

Listen to Helen. Either the last initial or those of both the first and last names are used. The only time it's just the first initial is when worn by a young boy or girl.

Dear Mr. Juster: A close friend of mine is getting married and has asked me to be best man. This means I'll need a tuxedo, so I will rent one. However, shoes are a problem as I require a size not carried by rental shops. Will my black wing tips do or must I buy patent leathers which I'll rarely use? — F.P.

Sorry, wing tips don't go with tuxedos. To get around buying shoes you'll rarely use, get plain-toe black ones that take a high polish. These will put you on the right footing for the wedding and can be used for regular wear later.

To L.J. — Stop blaming your wife because the back and sides of your shirt collars get dirty quickly. Most likely it's caused by accumulated dust and grime on your coat collar rubbing off on your shirt collar, not her laundering method. See if periodic cleaning of your suits doesn't solve the problem.

Dear Mr. Juster: I recently bought a dark blue flannel suit and like it very much except for one thing. Lint clings to it and using a whisk broom or regular brush doesn't help much. Is there a special brush you might recommend? — M.L.E.

There is something more effective than a brush to remove lint. Get one of the adhesive "roller" tapes usually found in notion departments. It will pick up the most stubborn lint without roughing up the fabric.

Add Style to Your Fall

Proper hair care can make all the difference in your looks and outlook. First of all a good shaping is essential. Next choose a gentle shampoo, and condition your hair after every washing. Before blow drying or curling use a styling lotion. This will give your hair body as well as protect it from the heat of dryers, hot curlers and curling iron. With a consultation from Vito Anthony Hair Salon in Arlington Heights, your hair can have that healthy, sophisticated look for today's fashions. It's something you're always wearing, so if your hair doesn't look good the rest just doesn't matter. For appointment call 398-5146.

The doctor says

Exercise, diet better than shape-up girdle

For 26 years my husband has told me girdles do absolutely nothing for the figure. The body should be free of binding garments. I thought they would help support stomach muscles. Do girdles do more harm than good? I'd appreciate a reply to settle this argument between us.

Also, for firming chest muscles my husband says taking deep breaths in as far as possible will do it. I say pushing the hands together in front of the chest is more effective. Which is right?

I need to lose about 10 pounds but am really more interested in firming up. I have loose skin around my abdomen. I am 47, weigh 135 and am 5 feet 9. I have been doing exercises for the abdomen, letting the legs come down slowly while lying on my back. While I am still lying down I raise up to touch my toes without bending my knees. Can I actually firm this pad of loose fat if I continue? Will diet help?

You won't like my answer. You can hide a certain amount of flab and fat with a girdle but when it comes off the truth comes out.

Anything that replaces the work of muscle will weaken it. That is why leg muscles will shrink and weaken while a leg is in a cast. If you want to firm up your abdominal muscles you need to develop a conscious effort to keep your abdomen a little firmer and develop good posutre. Abdominal exercises help to keep the muscles firm. The ones you are doing are fine for that. Consciously keep your stomach muscles taut while doing them for better effect.

Even worse about girdles, if you have extra fat on or in the abdomen, when you squeeze it with a tight girdle it must go somewhere. It usually squeezes the abdominal contents up against the diaphragm. The diaphragm must rise to accommodate the blubber. That decreases the total lung capacity.

And as is so common in middle-aged women, if you have an enlarged hole in the diaphragm that allows a small hernia (hiatal hernia) through the diaphragm, the increased pressure will push part of the stomach through the enlarged hole and cause a hernia. That can lead to digestive problems.

So away with the girdles and replace them with firm abdominal muscles and elimination of fat inside and outside. With good results you won't need to fake it with a girdle.

I'm afraid your husband is not so smart about chest muscles. I approve of taking deep breaths to keep the lungs at maximum capacity but that won't help your chest muscles. Pushing your hands tightly together while held at different levels in front of you will help some. Those chest muscles fan out over the entire anterior surface of the chest. You need to do exericses that involve the motion of the arms as in a crawl stroke as if you were swimming.

You can always get some firming effect if you can voluntarily contract and then relax a muscle. Repeating this with any muscle, firmly contracting it each time, is a form of isometric exercise. This may help you.

Use pine oil to clean pet odors from carpet

Dear Roberta: Please tell me how to remove doggie odors from a carpet. — Gladys Heckman.

Lots of people, and animal hospital staffs, too, swear by a solution of liquid pine oil cleaner and water to remove odors left after all kinds of pet accidents. First sponge the pine oil solution on the area, and blot dry. For carpeting you may then need to spray with a rug cleaner and vacuum that up when dry. Some time ago, we had a serious problem with odors left by a pet on an upholstered car seat. Quick action didn't help, but patience did. It took many treatments with a paste made of baking soda and water to improve the situation markedly. What odor remained departed with a drop of oil of wintergreen.

Dear Roberta: Since our children are grown, and we don't need telephone numbers for their medical emergencies at fingertip, there's plenty of room on our emergency telephone list for other numbers. As our equipment is rather old, it's often handy not to have to look any further than that list for service numbers for the various utilities, for our appliances, and for the plumber, electrician, and the furnace and air conditioner repairmen. — Mrs. J. J. Peck.

I assure you that one's equipment needn't be old to suffer breakdowns these days, Mrs. Peck. The list taped by the phone here is crowded, so I plan to make a separate list according to your suggestions and put it inside a kitchen cabinet door near the phone.

Dear Roberta: Dieters who like tomato or tomato-vegetable juice will be happy to learn that these have roughly half the calories other fruit drinks have. — Clara Van Kirk.

Mrs. Mathews welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Two working parents can enrich the enjoyment of raising a family

by DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
(Fifth in a series)

ARLINGTON, Va. — A revolution is taking place in the American family. The time is now past when it can be assumed that the husband is the only breadwiner, and the wife stays at home, keeps the house and rears the children.

The latest figures show that 60 per cent of the mothers with children under 18 are working, and that 40 per cent of these mothers have children under six years old. This adds up to a total of 27 million children under 13, including six million children under six, who live in families where both mother and father go out to work every day.

American women have always worked. But in the past the chores at home were the essential job, and only those women at the bottom of the economic ladder went out to work.

NOW WOMEN at all economic levels have jobs outside the home. In fact, to enjoy the standard of living a family might like today, a wife often needs to replace no-longer-existing home duties with a paid job. As one girl put it: "In our house Daddy makes the bread and butter and Mommy makes the jelly."

The problems of women at work increase dramatically when there are children involved. Despite the wonders of technology, disposable diapers and prepared foods, caring for a young child cannot be automated. It is a human job — 24 hours a day.

Even if a young mother decides to stay at home to care for her child, she may find herself ill equipped for the sudden change of pace in the home job. She finds herself isolated in her own home with an enormous amount of work and without the freedom and added income of her before-children job. Loneliness, as well as the 24-hour vigil, may get many a young mother down.

TO COPE ADEQUATELY with an infant and a young toddler, a woman needs inner peace. Without it she is apt to take out her frustrations in irritation with her child, which makes matters worse. A jumpy, nervous woman creates a jumpy, irritable child.

A woman who finds herself in this state of mind should take the problem seriously. It is advisable for her to talk the matter over with her husband, with the pediatrician, with her own physician or with a trusted friend, in order to find a solution that will fit her needs.

This might entail some regular babysitting that would give her regular free time, or perhaps sharing more of the child care responsibilities with her husband, or an earlier return to part or full-time employment, or, if necessary, personal counseling to allay her own anxieties about being a mother. Life with a young child can be a beautiful experience, one that ought to be fully enjoyed, not simply endured.

PROBABLY THE most important question facing a mother who decides to work is adequate care. Public day care centers exist in many areas of the country. There are approximately 21,000 such centers with places for about three-quarter million children. There are, however, six million children under the age of six in need of care, and many millions of older children as well.

Some of these centers are excellent, but many are hardly more than parking places for children. It is the responsibility of each mother and father to find adequate care for their child. This may be done in many different ways. Once in a while, a grandmother or other family member is available. More often it is a woman with children of her own who will take on an extra child or two.

> "Despite the wonders of technology, disposable diapers and prepared foods, caring for a young child cannot be automated. It is a human job — 24 hours a day. . ."

When good care can be found, children thrive. A child can accept care from someone besides its own parents if that person is warm, loving and competent. We know that children accepted the care of various members of the extended family — including grandmothers, aunts, cousins — that was typical in households before modern times. In fact, children are probably better off with horizons and emotion attachments that extend beyond their own homes.

ALTHOUGH THE vast majority of working mothers still carry the major responsibility for home and children, a small but growing number of men now share in this job.

To successfully handle both work and family chores, there are three requirements:

- A strong constitution. A working mother and father need vim and vigor in the evenings to enjoy their children, to feed them, talk to them, play with them. It is the quality, not quantity, of time spent with a child that is important.
- Extra income. Hopefully, with two working parents, a family can afford to hire some housekeeping help, so that parents do not use precious time and energy cleaning or doing laundry.
- Mutual understanding. The husband of a working woman needs to respect his wife's job. A man who feels denigrated because "his wife works" is likely to belittle her efforts and undermine her self-esteem. Both husband and wife must support each other's efforts in this mutual endeavor, keeping in mind that theirs is something of a pioneering effort.

LOOKING FORWARD to the future, it is clear that women will continue to expect full professional lives as well as a home life.

Yet, men and women have children together. Fortunately, we are beginning to see changes in attitudes that are allowing men and women to share fully the essential task of child rearing. More changes are needed — changes in public attitude, in the availability of child care and in regulation of the work force — to allow and encourage men and women to have both satisfying jobs and a warm, loving, family life.

Weddings

Marietta Chany Rudy Barksdale

An area couple, Marietta Chany of Arlington Heights and Rudy Barksdale of Hoffman Estates, were united in a double ring ceremony Sept. 10 in the First Baptist Church, Wheeling. A reception for 75 guests followed at the Holiday Inn, Mount Prospect.

Marietta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Chany, chose Bonnie Mansberger, Hoffman Estates, as her maid of honor. Marietta's sisters, Anita and Loretta, were bridesmaids for the 4 p.m. ceremony officiated by the Rev. David Morrell, Dwight, Ill.

Rudy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Barksdale, Chicago, chose Chuck Tapp, Carpentersville, as best man. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Calvin, and Dave Witt, Rolling Meadows. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Blake and Fred.

After a week's honeymoon at Mackinac Island, the newlyweds are making their home in Hoffman Estates. The bride, a '75 graduate of Buffalo Grove High School, works for Minnesota Fabrics, Arlington Heights. The groom attended Taft High School, Chicago.

Wedding bells to ring for 3 couples

Drazba-Zdeblick

A romance that began at Marquette University will culminate in marriage when Cathy Drazba and Tom Zdeblick exchange wedding vows in July 1978. Their engagement has been announced by Cathy's parents, Dr. and Mrs. John Drazba, Arlington Heights. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Zdeblick, Park Ridge.

She attended Arlington High School before Marquette and is employed as a dental hygienist in Milwaukee. Her fiance, a Maine South graduate, will finish at Marquette and enter Tufts Medical School next fall.

Stoneham-Stirmell

Rolling Meadows High School graduates Cindy A. Stoneham and Chris R. Stirmell Jr. are engaged and planning to be married Nov. 26.

Their engagement and forthcoming marriage are announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Stoneham, Hanover Park. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chris R. Stirmell, Arlington Heights.

She works for City Products, Des Plaines, and he is self-employed as a decorator.

Buckingham-Pomrenke

A January 1978 wedding is planned by an Arlington Heights couple. The engagement of Regina Buckingham to Brian Walter Pomrenke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Pomrenke, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Buckingham.

Miss Buckingham, a '75 graduate of Sacred Heart High School, works for Ohm Electronics, Palatine. Pomrenke, a '75 graduate of Prospect High School, is a corporal in the U. S. Marine Corps at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

Judith Ann Nelson—Joseph Kunowski

A romance that began in junior high school culminated in marriage for Judith Ann Nelson and Joseph Kunowski, a pair who have been dating each other for nine years. They were wed Sept. 24 at 4:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church of Palatine.

Judith, the daughter of Mrs. Robert W. Nelson, Palatine, was given in marriage by her uncle, George I. Nelson of Baltimore, Md. Joseph is the son of Mrs. Ann J. Kunowski, Palatine.

For the double ring ceremony by candlelight, the bride was attired in an ivory crepe-satin, waltz length gown and ivory picture hat. Round her neck was her grandmother's heirloom cameo. She carried a bouquet of ivory tea roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and crimson star flowers.

Victoria S. Dopp, Palatine, was matron of honor. A single apricot rose in her hair complemented her jersey knit print gown in tones of ivory, apricot and rust. Apricot tea roses, baby's breath, and ivory, rust and apricot daisies made up her bouquet.

IDENTICAL to the matron of honor in both dress and flowers was the little flower girl, Lisa K. Nelson, 2, the bride's nieice of Barrington. Her nephew, Sean M. Steill, 5, Hoffman Estates, served as ring bearer.

Robert M. Kunowski, Round Lake Beach, served his brother as his best man, with the bride's brothers, Michael and David, assuming their duties as ushers.

The newlyweds greeted 90 guests at a family style dinner dance at Greco's Restaurant & Lounge, Palatine, before leaving for a week's honeymoon in Wisconsin. They are now at home in Hoffman Estates.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kunowski

A 1973 graduate of Palatine High school, Judith works as a secretary at Raco Industrial Corp., Des Plaines. Robert is an insulation contractor for K. Reinke Jr. & Co., Dundee, and also attends Harper College. He is a 1973 graduate of Fremd High School.

'No. 1 of No. 1' stays a cut above by selling himself with the product

by JOHN N. FRANK

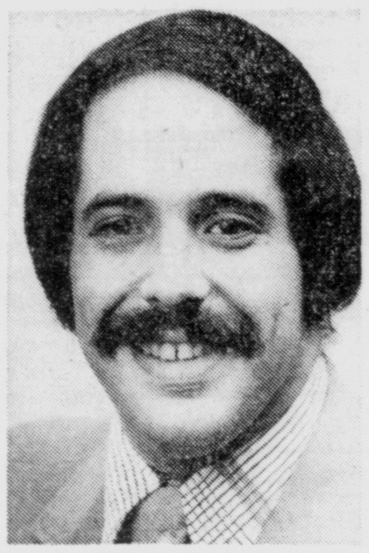

Mike Wolf likes to call himself "No. 1 at No. 1" because he is the leading dollar value salesman at the Des Plaines-based Hertz Corp. Truck Leasing Division and it fits in with the philosophy that carried him to the top of his field.

"You've got to be a cut above. When you sell, you're not selling the product, you're selling yourself," says Wolf, 34, of 2495 Yarrow Ln., Rolling Meadows.

Wolf began his selling days with an insurance company in 1967 but quickly decided "everybody has a brother who sells insurance." So he got out of that and into truck leasing.

It's not the product that gives Wolf his satisfaction, but being able to sell himself along with selling the product.

"I WANT TO BE a little bit different. It's so much more enjoyable to be a little bit different," says the man who wears a rose in his lapel on sales calls, and will often hand out flowers at an airport after a successful business trip.

MIKE WOLF

"Given a little time to learn, I think I could sell just about anything. You either have it or you don't. It's like being an artist, it takes a certain kind of personality," Wolf says.

It's the kind of personality that requires him to tell himself he's feeling great when he awakens at 5 a.m. to start a grueling 16-hour day, Wolf says.

And it's the kind of personality that can accept the frequent rejection even the best of salesmen get, he says.

"The rejection is probably the worst part of it, when someone says 'no.' You get knocked down, you want to pick yourself up. If you can get through those bad weeks there's got to be some good weeks, too," Wolf says.

HE KNOWS THAT at best, he'll only sign two of 10 prospects he visits in his three and a half-states sales territory. And he knows he'll spend countless hours on planes rushing to and from unsuccessful appointments.

"There are days I get up when I feel absolutely rotten," he says. But, "you have to psych yourself up when you're down. The key to really becoming good is to be a professional."

He has become a good salesman in his 10 years of truck leasing sales, even better than he expected.

"I set a 10-year goal of selling $1 million, it took three. I set a 10-year goal of getting into national sales, it took five. Once you hit a certain goal that you think will take a lot longer, you think 'what am I going to do next,' " Wolf says.

HIS LATEST goal is to be able to retire at 45, but right now Wolf is concentrating on staying No. 1.

"The big challenge now that you've become the No. 1 of No. 1 is to stay there. I've got to have confidence in myself. If I come in second, I come in second," Wolf says.

He has been selling truck leasing contracts, which involve Hertz leasing fleets of trucks to large corporations. His sales are valued at between $3 million and $4 million a year, but he knows that a few thousand dollars one way or the other could drop him from the top.

"There's only one guy who can be No. 1 he says.

Business briefs

Heller predicts $17 billion tax cut

ATLANTA (UPI) — Walter Heller, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, Monday predicted President Carter would seek a tax cut of $17 billion — "exactly what the doctor ordered" for a sluggish economy. Heller also said that while "there's no recession in sight," the economy will not pick up enough to significantly reduce unemployment over the next several months. He predicted 6 per cent inflation next year. Heller called a tax cut "the most hopeful single thing" to spark economic growth. "It's exactly what the doctor odered," he said at a news conference, adding the money would not be sunk into savings or cause inflation.

Skytrain lists impressive profits

The no-reservation Laker Skytrain service linking New York and London carried 15,079 passengers in its first month and made a profit of $224,294, Freddie Laker said Monday. The no-frills service, which costs $103 to New York and $135 to London, sells 345 seats in each direction starting at 4 a.m. each day. Laker said the DC-10 jet his line flies carried an average of 538 passengers a day for a 78 per cent load factor. The service will be stepped up to two flights a day in each direction next April, Laker said. The projected profit based on the first month's figures would give Laker more than $2.5 million a year.

Dockworker talks break down

Efforts by the Federal government's top labor mediator to get the parties involved in a 24-day-old dockworkers strike at Gulf and Atlantic ports back to the bargaining table collapsed Monday and negotiations were recessed indefinitely. Wayne L. Horvitz, Dir. of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said he ordered the recess at 1:20 p.m. (EDT), ending four days of negotiating efforts with the International Longshoremen's Assn., the New York Shipping Assn. Inc., and the Council of North Atlantic Shipping Assns. "After four days of intensive discussions with the parties, I have reluctantly concluded that an impasse has been reached," Horvitz said.

Bell & Howell earnings drop

Bell & Howell reported Monday that its third quarter earnings slumped to 35 cents a share from 63 cents a year earlier in spite of a rise in sales to $125.26 million from $112.65 million. However, the year ago profit on continuing operations was 49 cents a share. Net income was $2.04 million against $3.64 million. For nine months, Bell & Howell earned $8.02 million or $1.39 a share on sales $352.73 million, compared with $7.56 million or $1.58 a share a year ago on sales of $311.39 million. Chairman Donald Fry said a soft market for consumer photographic products in the third quarter reversed an earlier upward trend in profits, but he said Bell & Howell's publishing and mail handling and other photographer operations were running ahead of last year.

Battle Creek welcomes Japanese

Frederick R. Brydges, mayor of Battle Creek, Mich., Monday invited Japanese industries to invest in his city. Brydges told a news conference his city welcomes Japanese and other foreign investment in auto parts, machine tools, food products, consumer and pharmaceuticals products.

Japan welcomed steel guidelines

A senior Japanese trade official says his country might have agreed to steel import quotas weeks ago if the United States had proposed them, the Youngstown Vindicator said in a copyrighted article Sunday. "If we could get a concrete proposal, I think we would say we are ready to consider quantitative restrictions," Toshaihiko Tanabe, Japan's first secretary in charge of trade told the newspaper in an interview from his Washington office. "We are ready to consider the diversion of market mechanisms by controlling our exports," Tanabe said. "Of course, it would depend on the quantity." The article said Japanese officials might even have agreed to import quotas weeks ago had the U.S. proposed them. "By late last August, we became aware of the great problems of your steel industry," Tanabe said. "We told your government we were very flexible and to please give us a concrete proposal. But we have received no such proposal."

House has two steel resolutions

House members of the Congressional Steel Caucus will present President Carter with two resolutions when they meet with him Thursday, Rep. Joseph Gaydos, D-Pa., chairman of the House Steel Caucus executive committee, said Monday.

One resolution asks Carter to exercise power given him by the Trade Act of 1974 to provide both short-term and long-term relief to the ailing domestic steel industry, Gaydos said.

The second resolution urges Carter to retain existing quotas on specialty steel as recommended by the advisory International Trade Commission.

Running economy no easy task

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — Let's all pause now for a moment of quiet remembrance of a fellow we haven't seen for about a year now: candidate Jimmy Carter, the guy with the engaging smile and the confident assurance that all our economic problems would evaporate if only they could be treated with suitable doses of piety and competence.

It's a very different Jimmy Carter we are dealing with today, and he deserves our sympathy, because he has come squarely up against one of the most uncomfortable truisms in American political economics: it's a heck of a lot easier to run for President than to be one.

When you run for President, especially in whichever party happens not to be holding the White House at the time, you have a lot going for you: millions of Americans are dissatisfied (always), much seems to be wrong with the economy (always) and the incumbent appears to have made some serious errors in economic policy (always). Hence you can play on the dissatisfaction without being too specific about your own proposed solutions. Carter performed this role with exceptional skill.

NOW, HOWEVER, as he struggles through the autumn of his discontent, the smile fades and he occasionally becomes a mite irritable. Nor are the sources of his frustration hard to find, because on issue after issue they reside in the gap between campaigning and governing.

Take the question of "tax reform," which sounds so splendid and noble when an orator declaims about it, but becomes somewhat more complicated in practice.

Candidate Carter could, and did, characterize the U.S. tax code as "a disgrace to the human race," and heads nodded all over the country — who likes taxes? — but in reality the system is not that, and it is this more daunting reality that now confronts him. The tax code, for all its faults, real and imagined, is the product of decades of legislation and debate, and each provision is there because it was thought at the time to accomplish some useful national purpose.

Revising the code is useful when those national purposes have changed, but inadvisable, and often downright impossible, when they have not. And so Carter, for example, is finding it was easier to assert a platitude like "all income should be taxed the same" than, in fact, to abolish all special treatment for capital gains. We still need, as a nation, to encourage capital investment more than ever. The realities may lack campaign sex appeal, but they won't go away when you're in the White House.

A SECOND illustration is the unemployment problem. Candidate Carter could make ringing declarations about the kind of massive (and, of course, noninflationary) inroads he was going to make on the unemployment rate. President Carter has found this rate much more unyielding than the earlier Carter had suggested and so he now must deal not only with a persistent and complex challenge but with the wrath of those who believed his rhetoric.

Real-life economic problems tend to be pesky. A succession of presidents made political hay by denouncing and restricting the U.S. steel companies, while their costs soared and their foreign competitors modernized and became more efficient. Now Carter, who has done his share of feasting on the scapegoat of big business, is faced with a dilemma involving many American jobs and it is not a dilemma that can be solved simply by imposing import quotas or other stopgaps.

Finally, the yawning distance between talking and doing is exposed by Carter's explosion at the energy companies. He knows perfectly well that they are not the all-purpose villains he tried to make them, and that even if they were to vanish his program would still be in trouble with numerous other groups including Congress. But it is easier to reach, campaign-style, for rousing demagoguery than to confront the weaknesses of his own proposals, particularly in the fundamental job of increasing U.S. supplies.

So spare Carter a tear: the work is harder, and the questions more complicated, than he thought or told us. The earlier Carter was a lot more fun for us all.

Dow falls 5.98 to a two-year low

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks fell to a two-year low Monday in the wake of prime rate hikes, some disappointing earnings reports and a market confirmation signal that a major downtrend is in progress. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 6.50-point loser Friday, fell another 5.98 points to 802.32, the lowest level since it closed at 794.55 Oct. 2, 1975. The Dow, which lost 13.34 points overall last week, has lost 202.33 points so far this year.

The selling pace intensified in the last 90 minutes Monday when the Dow Jones transportation average reached its lowest level in a year, which technical analysts and followers of the Dow theory said signaled the market was in a major downtrend. The transportation average closed at 201.74, down 3.07.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index dropped 0.37 to 50.24, the lowest level since it hit 50.08 Jan. 8, 1976, and the average price of a share fell 22 cents.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, lost 0.69 to 91.63, the lowest level since it closed at 90.90 Jan. 2, 1976.

Declines routed advances, 973 to 450, among the 1,869 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big board volume totaled 19,210,000 shares, down from the 20,230,000 traded Friday.

Ford trucks, cars recalled

LIVONIA, MICH. (UPI) — The danger of a possible underhood fire and a mechanical problem that could cause drivers to lose steering control prompted Ford Motor Co. Monday to recall more than 63,300 cars and trucks.

Stephen P. Geoffrey, manager of the service engineering office at the Ford Parts and Services Division, announced 49,700 1977-model Ford, Mercury, LTD II, Cougar and Thunderbird passengers cars and Ranchero and F-series light trucks were being recalled because of the fire danger.

Geoffrey said that on some vehicles equipped with 351 and 400-CID V-8 engines an improper hose clamp assembly could cause fuel leakage, creating the potential for an underhood fire. However, he said Ford had received no reports of fires, accidents or injuries resulting from the problem.

ABOUT 5,300 UNITS in Canada and 600 vehicles in other countries were recalled for similar clamp trouble.

Geoffrey said 13,600 new E-series light trucks were being called back to the dealers for inspection of an attachment between the steering gear and the pitman-arm.

"On a small percentage of these vehicles, improper torquing of the pitman-arm to steering-gear attachment could cause the pitman-arm to separate from the steering gear resulting in a loss of steering control," Geoffrey said.

He said Ford had received no reports of accidents or injuries resulting from that problem.

Bears' Rives tackles 'fair weather fans'

by BOB GALLAS

As a middle linebacker, the Bears' Don Rives makes his living cutting through opposing linemen. Monday, Rives cut through all the BS Chicago football fans have had to listen to as their team has slipped to a 2-4 record to start the season.

While the team's customary Monday press luncheons usually produce a league-leading number of excuses and promises for the future, Rives talked honestly about his team's poor play so far and took a blast at the Boo-Birds of Soldier Field, saying they make him "sick."

"They're fair-weather fans," Rives said. "In Denver if they get down three points you can bet your sweet tail their fans don't boo. I'd just as soon not have anybody there than to put up with the stuff we've had to put up with."

RIVES MAY HAVE been moved to speak by the fan who, after the Bears had lost 16-10 to Atlanta, "yelled at me to look at the films of Butkus. Well, I'm not Dick Butkus and I don't play middle linebacker like he did," Rives said. But Rives wasy saying what has been on the minds of the Bears all season. They don't criticize the fans for booing. They criticize because the fans come prepared to boo, rather than cheer.

"When it was Monday Night Football and the fans got into the swing of things was the only time the fans were behind us," concurred head coach Jack Pardee. "We were down 13 points and they still supported us."

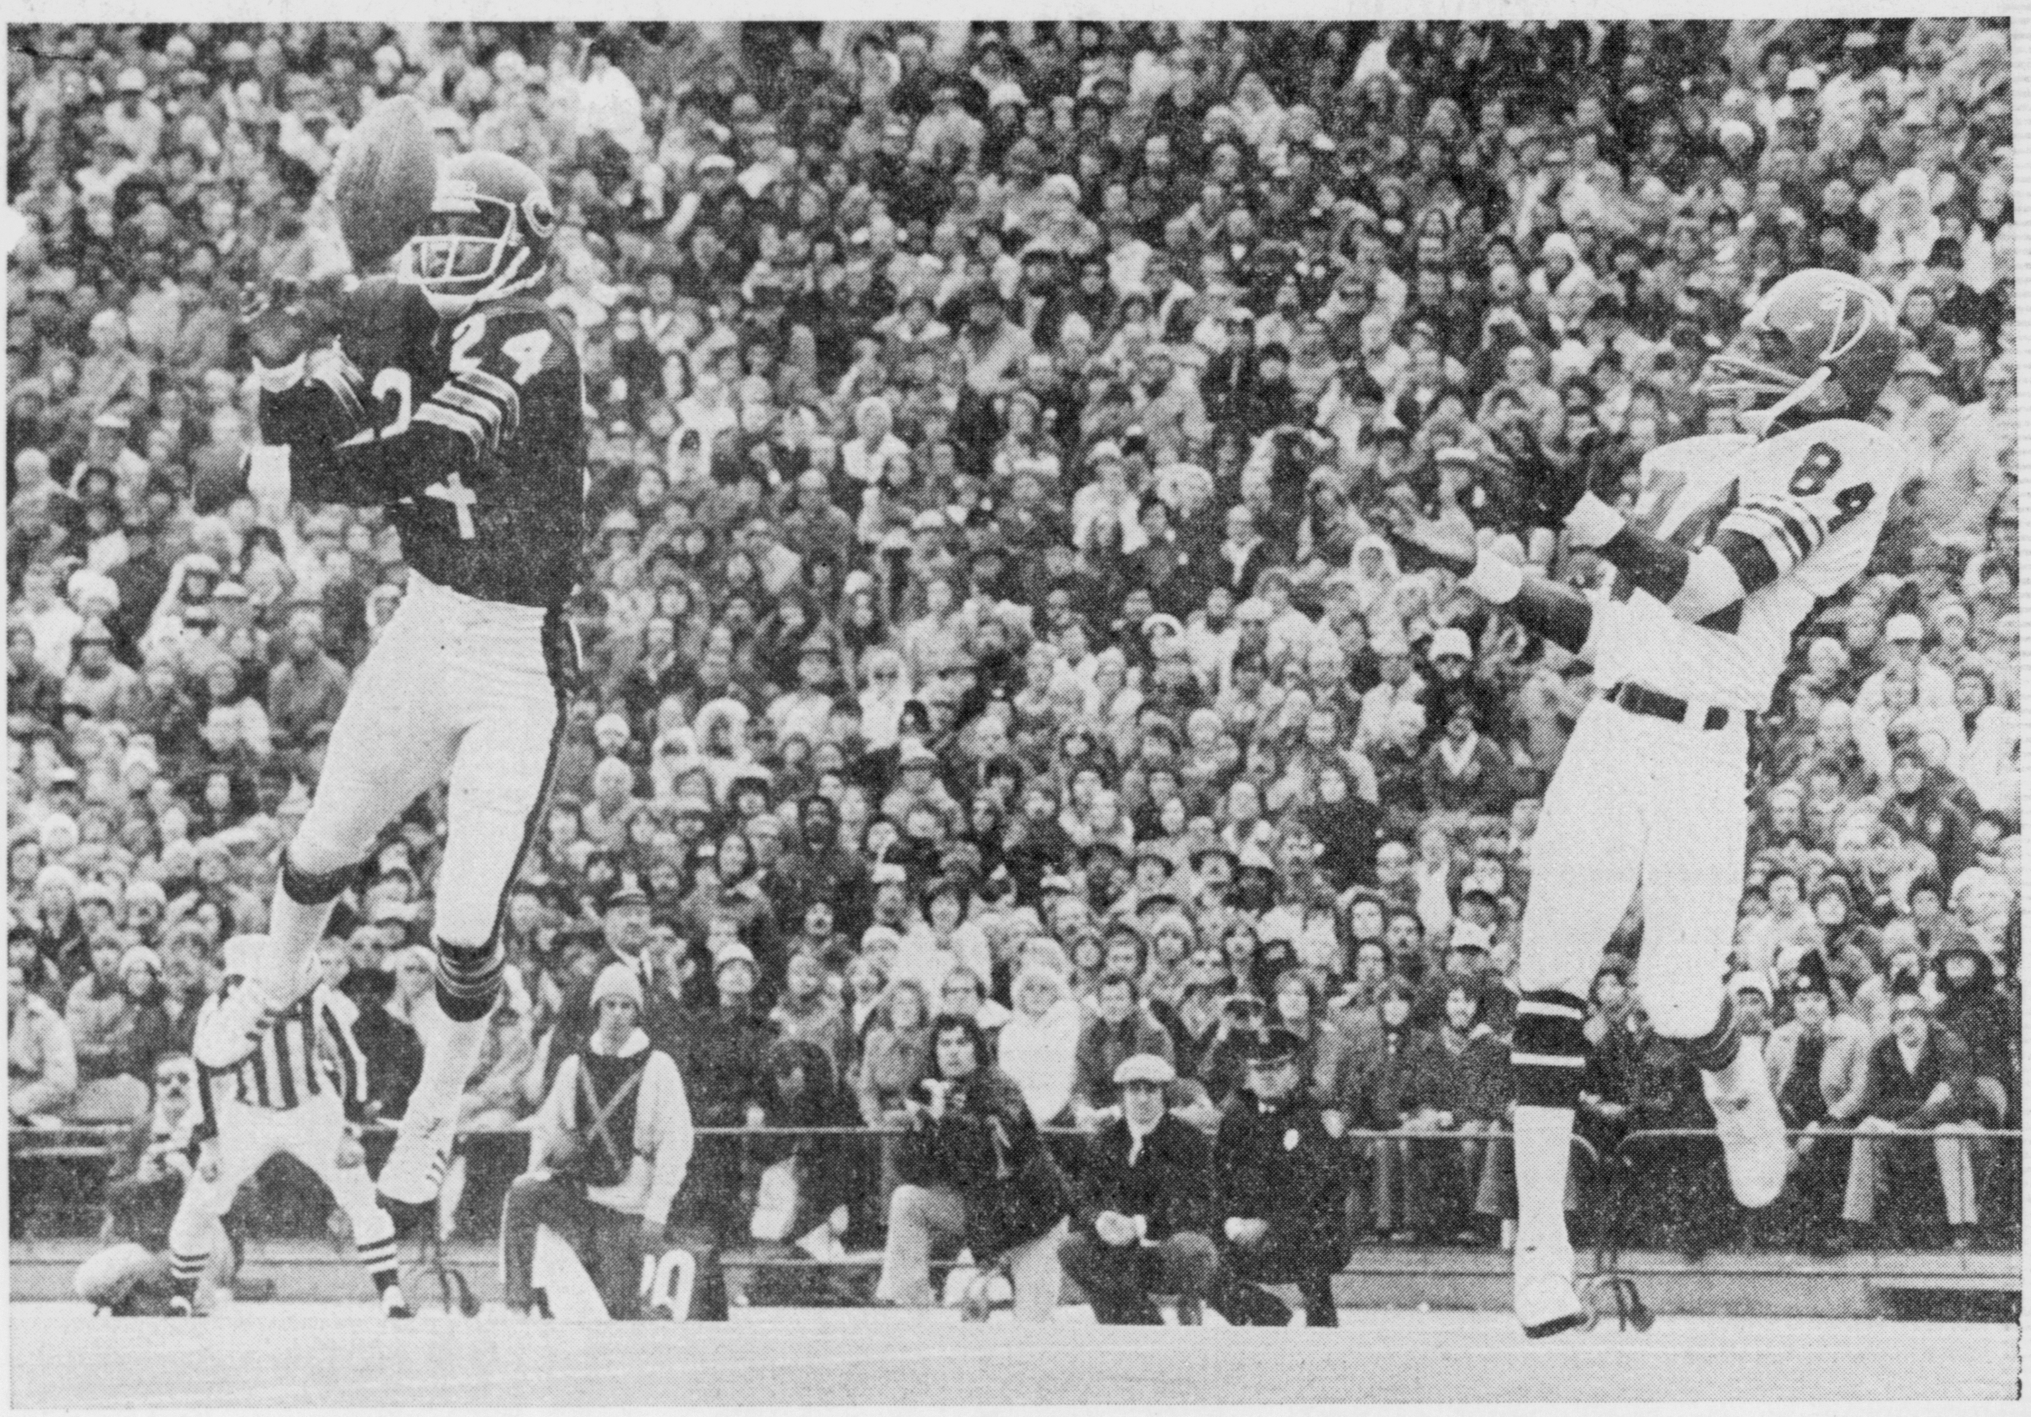

"The only time our fans yell for us is when we're up." Rives said. "When we're down, all we get is crap.

"Everybody has all the answers as to why we're not winning. I know the fans think we're not trying, but why would we get out there and not try to win? They should cheer, because we're trying to win."

RIVES PROBABLY did himself anything but good in bad mouthing Bears "fans." Now those "fans," who throw whiskey bottles and hurl obscene remarks at the Honey Bears, might turn some of their limited attention spans to him.

Those "fans" come to boo because they remember the Bears' ineptness in the loss to New Orleans, the closing minutes of the St. Louis loss, the first quarter of the eventual overtime loss to the Vikings and now another afternoon of frustration against the Falcons.

What the "fans" forget is most of the St. Louis and Minnesota games, the win against the Rams and the opening day win against Detroit. The fans complain that the Bears still claim their youth as an excuse for losing though much of the team has been together as a unit for three years.

They forget that despite those three years of togetherness, the Bears are still one of the youngest teams in pro football.

Chicago may not make it to the playoffs this year but the Bears have shown that the days of Abe Gibron and 42-0 losses are gone. Even at their very worst, the Bears have been but a few big plays away from winning every game they've played this season. There is no despair in the Bear camp. There is impatience.

RIVES' HONESTY will make him few friends, except perhaps for the grateful writers who were spared the usual cliches. But his anger was not limited to just the fans, but also to himself and his teammates.

"Over-all we played our best game (on defense) but then their (Atlanta's) defense was terrible," Rives said. "I don't even think they have an offense. They just score a few points and let the defense play.

"If we don't start doing our jobs pretty soon we won't have any jobs to worry about," said Rives. "I know people are getting tired of excuses.

"We're 28th (last) in the league defensively so I guess we have to take whatever is given out. It's going to be a long season if we don't start winning. You may be tired of those excuses but not as tired of it as we are."

SEVERAL DROPPED passes cost the Bears crucial first downs in third-down situations Sunday and those, too, drew Rives' comments. "When you can't catch a ball, the other stuff doesn't matter a hang," he said.

Rives said he and his teammates haven't given up hopes for the playoffs. Those hopes, however, would seem to be remote since the Bears have lost four of their first six and realistically can lose none of their final eight games if they want to make the playoffs.

"Ten and four will get us into the playoffs," said Rives. "Teams that win in streaks get into the playoffs.

"Pittsburgh last year lost four but won their last eight to get into the playoffs. Maybe we're not in Pittsburgh's class yet but I know we can beat Minnesota here and we can beat Detroit in Detroit. There's still a chance.

"I'LL GUARANTEE we'll beat Green Bay (this Sunday's opponent" said Rives, who then perhaps realized such a statement was akin to waving a red flag in front of a bull. He spoke again.

"I'll guarantee I hope we do."

The Bears' season fast becoming laughing matter

Art Mugalian

Byline report

There's no accounting for what people find funny these days.

An audience will laugh at jokes about ptomaine poisoning and dead pets, and then when something is really funny they sit there like they missed the punch line.

THE IMPORTANT thing to remember when searching for a sure laugh is "be relevant." A comic from one of the local chuckle parlors told me that in order to be funny you have to be understood.

"It helps if you have something funny to talk about," the comedian said.

Let's try an experiment. We'll call it creative comedy writing.

Chicago Bears.

DID I HEAR some muffled snickers out there? Did we strike a funny bone or not?

Let's build on our joke. Chicago Bears, two wins, four losses, kiss their playoff hopes goodbye.

Now we're moving into sick humor and there are some borderline folks out there who are probably rolling in the aisles by now. You know who you are.

We could get into some situational stuff by poking innocent fun at punt returns, for instance. But you get the idea.

THESE ARE sure-fire jokes that would have had them doubling over on the Titanic. Henny Youngman could throw away his violin if he had this material. Think of the one-liners. "The Bears had a bad break that cost them the game. They had to kick off."

Okay, it's not all impeccable material. Some of it you've heard before. It wasn't funny then, either. But give it a chance.

Bobby Avellini. (Guffaws.) The name sounds like a Marx Brothers character. Come to think of it, so does Phipps.

The laughter seems to be scattered. What's the matter? Isn't this stuff funny? What is this, a morgue?

OKAY, LET'S face it. We're beating a dead horse, much like the Atlanta Falcons beat a dead Bear last Sunday. We're all laughed out. We laughed so hard, we cried. The tears were rolling down our cheeks and we couldn't tell where the delight ended and the pain began.

Because, of course, the joke is on us. Pretty funny, wouldn't you say? That's a real knee-slapper.

What makes it so funny is that this was supposed to be the year the Bears got down to serious business. No more kidding around, they said. We're playoff-bound, they said.

The first principle of comedy, said the comic, is the unexpected. Throw something out when the audience least expects it. Set them up, then knock them over with a line out of left field.

THE BEARS CAME OUT of left field this year. Now they're ready to go back where they come from. They gave us a quick, cheap thrill or two (remember Detroit, remember Los Angeles on Monday night?) but when we least expected it the Bears took a pratfall.

Admit it, it's funny. We thought things were going to be different. They still might be different. The season is not even half over.

But it's so easy to laugh.

A comedian learns right away how not to lose his audience. Hit them hard and early, then hold on. Once you get them laughing, you've got it made. They'll laugh at anything.

Laughter will be the only response the Bears get from some of us. Maybe a periodic boo. For others, the brave battle will go on.

Go on, carck a smile. Don't take it so seriously. It's not good for you to bottle up all those emotions. You can pretend it's SUPPOSED to be funny.

Heard any good Bear jokes lately?

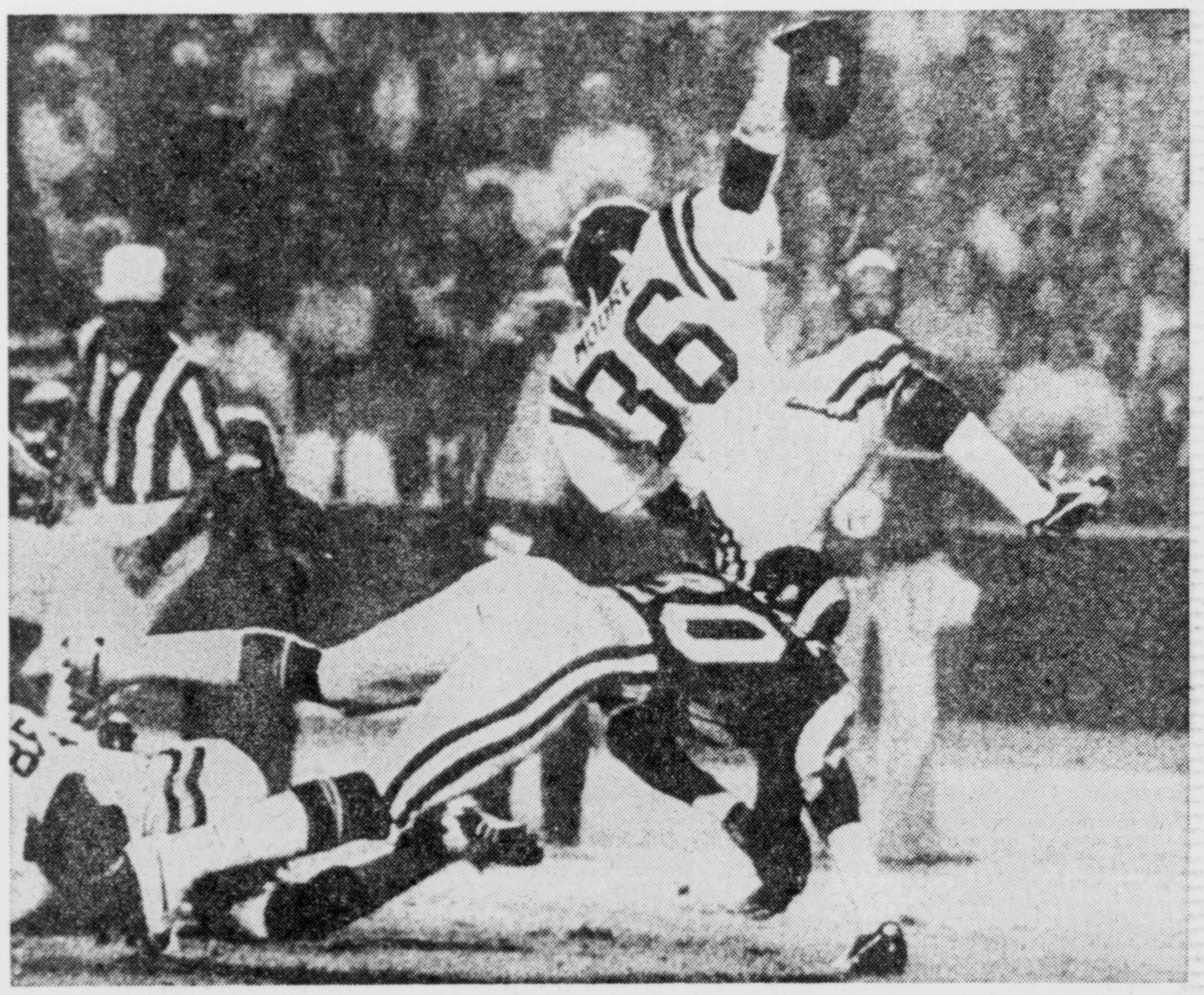

Soccer title game Thursday

The championship of Mid-Suburban League soccer will be decided Thursday night at Wheeling High School.

Wheeling from the North Division and Forest View from the South will clash for the varsity title at approximately 7:45 p.m.

Admission is $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

A frosh-soph attraction will begin at 6 p.m. on the Wheeling field.

FANCY FOOTWORK helps the Minnesota Vikings' Manfred Moore elude tackler Jackie Wallace of the Los Angeles Rams during the second quarter of Monday night's nationally televised NFL game. It was the Rams, though, who did the fanciest work, winning 35-3.

Haden sparks Rams to 35-3 win

by JIM COUR

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Young Pat Haden, in only his second start of the season, passed for a pair of touchdowns and scrambled for a third in the opening half Monday night to spark the Los Angeles Rams to a 35-3 romp over the Minnesota Vikings, their conquerors in two of the last NFC title games.

Cornerback Pat Thomas intercepted two Fran Tarkenton passes and the Rams' defense, without a quarterback sack in two straight games and with only a total of seven in the club's first five contests, sacked Minnesota's veteran quarterback four times for a total of 38 yards.

Haden, who was elevated to the starting quarterback's role after the Rams got off to a disappointing 2-2 start under Joe Namath, helped Los Angeles move into a first-place tie with Atlanta in the NFC West with a 4-2 record.

THE FORMER Southern Cal Rose Bowl hero, a seventh-round draft choice of the Rams in 1975, gave them a 7-0 lead with just 4:22 gone in the game with a nifty 7-yard run on a scramble.

Thomas' two interceptions came in the second quarter and set up both of Haden's touchdown passes, the first a 2-yarder to tight end Charles Young at 6:44 and a 9-yarder to a diving Harold Jackson at 14:26 as the Rams jumped to a 21-0 halftime lead. The interceptions gave the Rams the ball on their own 42 and 20.

In a rematch with the team that beat them 24-13 last December at Bloomington, Minn., for the NFC championship, the Rams added two touchdowns in the second half. The first came on a 1-yard plunge by John Cappelletti at 12:19 of the third quarter and the second on a 44-yard sprint by rookie Wendell Tyler at 2:34 of the fourth period.

Lothar Peistrup wins outdoor tennis tourney

Lothar Peistrup won two singles titles and then teamed with Roman Spychalski to win two doubles divisions in the 1977 Club Tournament of the Arlington Tennis Club.

Peistrup was singles champion in the Men's A division and junior vets division and captured doubles honors in the same categories.

No other club member won more than one championship, but several placed in more than one division. They were Harry Laser, first in men's vets singles and second in juniors vets singles; Steve Jones, who won men's C Singles and teamed with Dick Meining for second in men's C doubles; Jody Kynast, who teamed with Val Burns to win women's junior vets doubles and played with Nancy Bausman to gain second in women's A doubles; Dick Ackerman, who teamed with John Clark to win men's vets doubles and placed second with Larry Brown in men's junior vets doubles; Paul Dean, who placed second in men's senior singles and teamed with Dave Bone for runner-up in senior doubles; Mary Laser, second in the A and junior vets women's singles; and Clare Feiereisel, who finished second in men's vets singles and teamed with Errol Unikel for second in men's B singles.

THE TOURNAMENT was the final event of the outdoor season for the club, which is a nonprofit organization for social and competitive tennis in the northwest suburban area. The club held eight tournaments during the summer and entered three men's teams and two women's teams in the Northwest Suburban League. The B men's team was first in its division.

The club will hold its annual awards banquet No. 12 at Old Orchard Country Club.

A complete list of winners and runners-up in the club tournament follows:

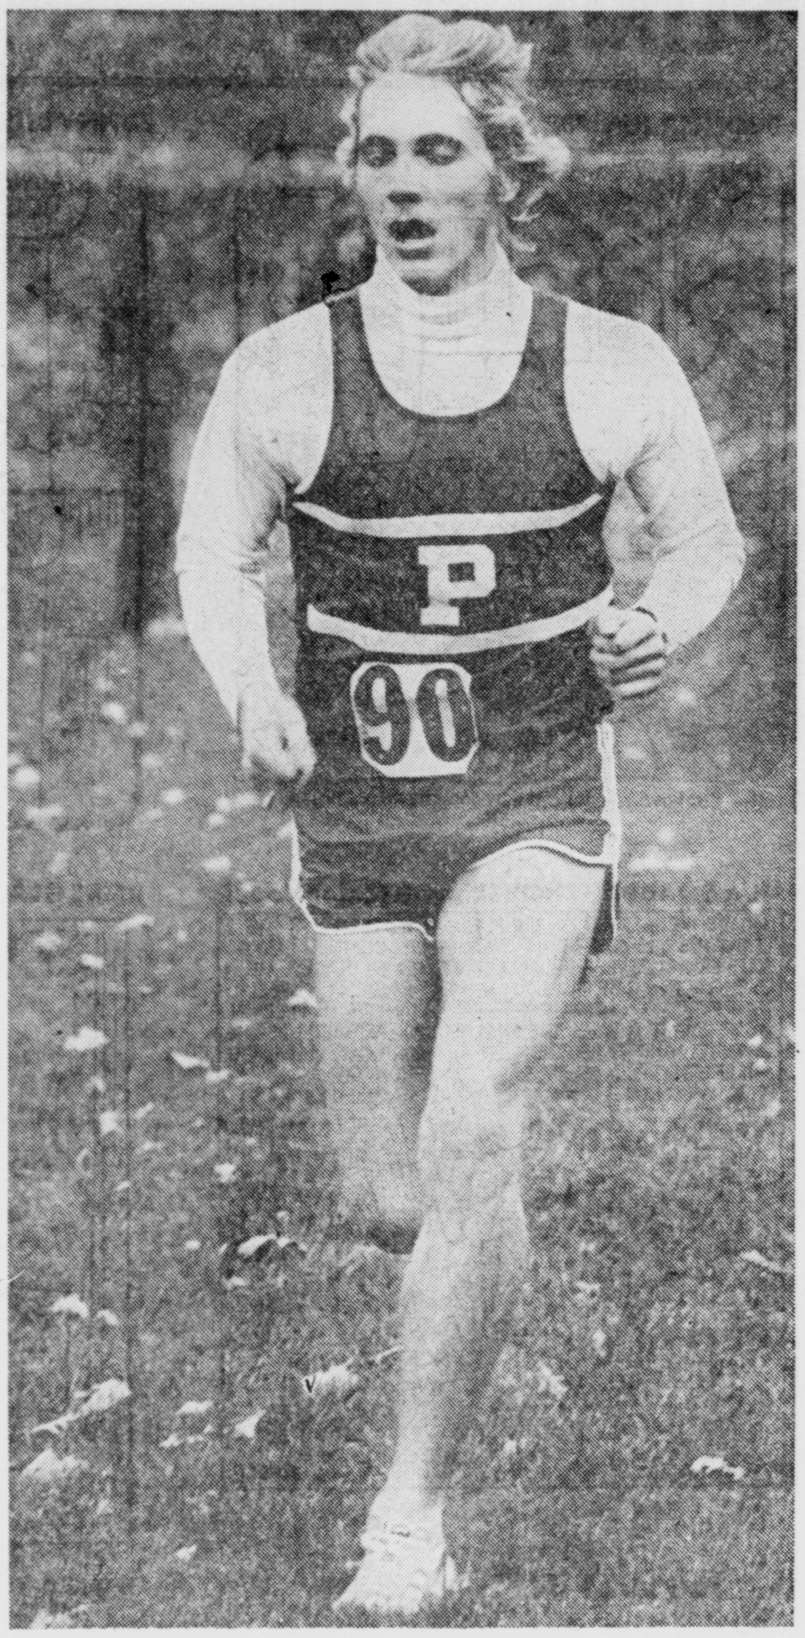

- Men's A Singles — Peistrup over Tom Jur.
- Men's B Singles — Bill Bauman over John Rice.
- Men's C Singles — Jones over Bill Casperson.

Falcon frosh win soccer title

Carlos Pontechelli and Rick Zombo drilled home goals to send Forest View to a 2-0 triumph over Lake Park Saturday in the championship game of the Falcon Invitational Frosh Soccer Tournament.

Forest View had reached the finals by blanking Prospect, 3-0 and edging St. Viator, 2-1. The Lions nipped Hoffman Estates in a playoff contest for third place.

The trio of wins upped the Falcon frosh slate to 11-1.

NHL nearing pact with USSR, Czechs

NEW YORK — The National Hockey League said Monday it is nearing a final agreement to have each of its 18 club members host a game against a visiting Russian or Czechoslovakian team sometime between Dec. 26 and Jan. 12, 1978. The international matches are being arranged by NHL President John A. Ziegler and R. Alan Eagleson, Executive Director of the NHL Players' Association.

Ziegler, returning from trips to Moscow and Prague, said he found "both Soviet and Czech ice hockey officials anxious to find and to work out a long range program of competition between their teams and the National Hockey League."

After meeting with Dr. Sabetski, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, Ziegler said he was convinced the NHL could expect the full support of the IIHF in the matter of this international competition.

Pele trying to forget pro soccer

SAO PAULO, Brazil — Soccer star Pele, just retired as a player and just beginning a new career as an international public relations executive, returned home to Brazil Monday to "prepare myself psychologically in order not to miss playing professional soccer." The 37-year-old native of Santos told newsmen at Sao Paulo's Congonhas airport that his new job would keep him traveling two or three months each year, but "I can definitely say that this time I have come home to stay."

"I have tried to prepare myself because I have now left soccer for other activities," Pele said. "In other words, I have to prepare myself psychologically in order not to miss playing professional soccer."

Pele played his last game Oct. 1 in New Jersey's Giants Stadium, completing a three-year contract with the North American Soccer League champion Cosmos and capping a 21-year professional career.

Bills offense confuses Simpson

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Attempts by the Buffalo Bills to balance their offensive attack appear to have O.J. Simpson a bit miffed. The Bills premier running back was somewhat irritated, although he tried to hide his frustration, after the Bills turned to their passing game in the second half of Sunday's 27-16 loss to the Cleveland Browns.

"Offensively, we haven't taken the initiative of any kind this year," Simpson said after the Bills dropped their fifth game in six tries this season. "We are a different personality as an offensive unit than we were before. "Since training camp," he added, "the emphasis has been on balance. Some of the things we used to do — that we used to take advantage of — we don't do quite as well. But that could be attributed to the change in personnel."

The Bills have thrown the ball 187 times in six games, an average of 31 passes per contest.

Purdue freshman earns UPI honor

NEW YORK — People around the Big Ten still are finding it hard to believe that Mark Herrmann is only 18 years old. The 6-foot-5, 190-pound freshman from Carmel, Ind., continues to amaze the opposition with his passing. On Saturday, Herrmann threw five touchdown passes, four of them to Reggie Arnold, to carry Purdue to a 34-21 victory over Iowa.

Herrmann completed 13-of-18 passes for 257 yards and his five touchdown passes tied the school record set by Mike Phipps against Stanford in 1969 and the Big Ten record held by two players. Herrmann hit Arnold with TD passes of 22, 43, 28 and 26 yards and added a 21-yard scoring pass to Dave Young. For his performance, Herrmann was named to UPI's Backfield of the Week.

Joining Herrmann in the Backfeild are running backs Joe Gattuso of Navy, Charles Alexander of Louisiana State and Henry White of Colgate.

After Nader gets a look at sports he may want to return to Corvairs

Jim Murray

(News Headline — "CONSUMER ADVOCATE RALPH NADER FORMS GROUP TO PROTECT SPORTS FANS."

Oh, good! Just what we fans need — seat belts.

I'm glad to see Ralph Nader moving into this long-neglected field. I have a whole box of letters from people who get beer spilled on them at Dodger Stadium, who find scratches on their cars in the Coliseum parking lot, who get shunted from window to window when they go to pick up their "will call" seats, who had their lemonade confiscated by overzealous rent-a-cops, who get their hot dogs cold and their beer hot.

BUT IF NADER thinks he's taking on General Motors in shoulder pads, he's going to find out this is an industry where you can't solve the problem just by recalling a quarterback or two, or making batters wear air bags. Nader has correctly labeled the professional sports establishment a "monopoly." But, as far as he's concerned, it's going to turn out to be a windfall.

In the first place, the fan does not care. A fan's first priority, if he's a college football honk, is "Beat the Bruins" or "Beat Michigan" or Up the Irish." If it's pro football, it's "On to the Super Bowl!" In basketball, he wants to win the NCAA. In hockey, it's the Stanley Cup; in baseball, the World Series. If his team wins any of those, he doesn't care if the franchise is owned by Hitler.

If the team doesn't — well, that's where Mr. Nader can come in. I can see it now . . .

"Dear Mr. Nader:

"I HAVE BEEN going to the Dodger (Cubs, Giants, Cardinals) games for years now and I'm sick and tired of the manager bunting all the time.. Can't we get a restraining order?"

"Dear Mr. Nader:

"I'm a Minnesota Viking fan and I think it's unfair we should lose the Super Bowl every year. I'm asking the Justice Dept. to declare the Oakland Raiders in violation of the anti-trust laws as a combination in restraint of trade, and that they be forced to divest themselves of Ken Stabler, Gene Upshaw and Art Shell. And order them to go to the Vikings."

"Dear Mr. Nader:

"The Montreal Canadiens should be broken up. I would like to see a law passed that anybody who scores more than 40 goals should be traded to the Los Angeles Kings. (signed) A Loyal Kings Fan."

NADER'S BURST of public zeal was occasioned by the summary trading this summer of Tom Seaver to the Cincinnati Reds. Now, for sure, somebody should be prosecuted for that trade. But the bulk of the evidence seems to suggest it was Seaver who provoked it, not management.

It's a popular political tack to take the players' side in management squabbles. I mean, nobody wants to root for U.S. Steel. But Nader's going to find that the players have as big a stake in this monopoly as the management. The last time I looked, the average football salary (not including collegians) was around $45,000 a year. In basketball, it's around $100,000. Some golfer is going to get hot any year now and win as many as four tournaments and gross $1 million.

Nader says he is protecting the fan. But if the average salary of an auto worker was $50,000-$80,000, how much would a Cadillac cost?

It's no secret that television has put athletes into the executive suite (a commercial minute in the Super Bowl will hit $250,000 this year) but every time TV ups the ante for a sporting event, your toothpaste goes up to pay for it. As Sylvia Porter used to say, "There's no such thing as a free lunch." Well, there's no such thing as a free TV show, either.

Actually, actors are the ones who need a consumer advocate. Sports on TV now takes up more than 350 hours in prime time. Monday Night Football was an innovation in 1970. Any year, we might have Every Night Football. The World Series experimented with one night game in 1971. This year it may well be every night game. The Mighty Prime Time Art Players are the losers here. Athletes have taken over their jobs on the sound stages and in the broadcast booths. Now they're pre-empting live prime time.

Nader might get the fan hotter hot dogs or bigger parking spaces. He might even get the Federal Trade Commission to keep Tom Seaver in New York or the Braves in Milwaukee but he can't do anything about spiraling consumer costs, from TV-advertised products to the box office, without seriously infringing on the collective bargaining rights of second-basemen, wide receivers, dunkshot artists and other monopolists of the vast professinal sports monopoly. When you talk about big labor, you don't necessarily mean the steelworkers' locals; you might mean the Steelers' backfield.

Queen play loses contract

South wanted to know why North hadn't used Stayman to find the 4-4 heart fit. North replied that he felt three notrump would have been as good a contract as four hearts and that it was just too bad that three out of three finesses had been wrong.

They went on to the next hand without either one seeing that three notrump could have been made in spite of all the misplaced kings. South had chucked his contract at trick one when he put his queen of clubs on West's jack. East had take his king and returned the suit to set up two more club tricks for West.

South should have risen with dummy's ace of clubs at trick one and knocked out the ace of hearts.

West would have won, but would also have been helpless. If he led the 10 of clubs dummy's queen would force East's king and leave South's nine as the master club. If West led a low club, the three would be played from dummy and East would have to play the king. Either way South would score nine tricks.

Ask Andy

Swamps form on low ground near water

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Edmond Matlosz Jr., 13, of Gallup, N.M., for his question:

HOW ARE SWAMPS FORMED?

One of the largest swamps in the world is the Florida Everglades. Covering almost 3,000 square miles, it is located in the southern part of the state and stretches from Lake Okeechobee to merge with saltwater marshes and mangrove swamps near the Bay of Florida and the Gulf of Mexico. Part of the area became Everglades National Park in 1934.

A swamp is an area of land which is either completely or almost completely soaked with water. It's a place that is always muddy and damp.

In most cases, a swamp usually is on low ground and is near the shore of some large body of water. Often swamp lands are near an ocean, river or large lake.

The low-land rule, however, doesn't always apply since some swamps are located on hills. There are times when soil on a hill drains poorly, while water from springs or other sources continues to come on the land. The result is swampy land.

Swamps also can be formed in lake basins which have become filled with plant life and silt. The Indians called this type of swamp a muskeg.

In many ways a swamp is like a peat bog, although a swamp's lower layers of soil are not heavy with acid content as are those in a peat bog.

Wet areas or swamp land that is inundated with water much of the time are called marshes. This type of location often is the breeding place for mosquitos. In England, especially near Ely and Cambridge, some of the marshes are called fens. Marsh land has been successfully drained in many locations and turned into productive agricultural areas.

Louisiana's famous delta region, where the Mississippi River meets the Gulf of Mexico, has many swampy areas. The delta takes up about a third of the state's area and covers about 15,000 square miles. Much of the area, however, now is fertile farm land.

Another famous swamp is the harsh, tropical wilderness called the Okefenokee Swamp in northern Florida and southeastern Georgia. Much of the area was purchased by the U.S. government in 1937 and turned into a wildlife refuge.

The name Okefenokee is taken from the Indian word Owaquaphenoga. It means trembling earth and refers to the trembling of bushes and water weeds that actually float on the shallow lakes of Okefenokee.

The Okefenokee swamp once was the favorite hunting area of the Seminole and Creek Indians. The area is protected today, however, and the land abounds in much wildlife including bears, deer, wildcats, otters, raccoons, opossums and alligators.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Belinda Neeley, 11, of Huntsville, Ala., for her question:

WHAT IS SWEET ACIDOPHILUS MILK?

Lactobacillus acidophilus is the fancy name of a pure culture of tiny organisms used by dairy manufacturers to ferment skim milk. The result is a popular and healthful product called acidophilus milk.

Acidophilus milk has a very smooth, creamy consistency and an odor and taste that many say is like buttermilk.

Many doctors recommend acidophilus milk for patients who suffer from any number of intestinal disorders. The organisms that can be found in the special milk, many doctors say, have both soothing and healing effects on the entire digestive system. The milk's bacterial composition actually changes the bacterial content of the intestines.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.
